LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Anti-communist paranoia

Dear Editor:

We express great concern about people poisoned in India, about people starving in Ethiopia, and about the spread of AIDS here in America, but apparently nobody is working on a cure for the world's deadliest disease — a mental aberration called anti-communist paranoia, which caused the deaths of 58,000 Americans and about a million Asians in Vietnam, and is now playing brinkmanship with World War Three to bring us a nuclear winter.

'Ivory tower politics'

Dear Editor:

I am not at all pleased with the wire fence which was forced on our city by a few privately contracted coastal resotration specialists. This fence, and the justification for its existence, do not have the support of our community and we should have the option to remove it.

Let voters decide

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a copy of a letter to Carmel School Trustee Robert Fenton from the committee seeking his recall.)

Dear Mr. Fenton:

Your request for a debate with those circulating a petition demanding the recall of you and your fellow board members, James Yates and Susan Bromfield, is in our view an attempt to divert attention from the sorry record the three of you have created in 1984.

The parents, teachers and other concerned citizens presently circulating petitions seeking a recall election aren't political candidates, and it's not their record that's in question.

Rather, it's your performance and that of your associates, which has outraged the community and prompted the recall effort. Little is to be gained in debating past transgressions at this time, and committee members feel that campaigning would be best left to avowed board candidates when the election takes place.

You refer to our efforts as "asinine" and suggest we lack "guts." We of the committee have little interest in name-calling, and prefer to let an informed electorate evaluate your performance.

'We'll be diminished'

Dear Editor:

On Wednesday, Sept. 26, the Monterey County Planning Commission approved the building of a 200- to 400-room hotel and golf course at San Francisquito Flat on Rancho San Carlos, as well as 2,000 new homes!

This act signifies the beginning of the end of one of the most beautiful natural areas located so close to the Monterey Peninsula. It also means the gradual destruction of a fragile habitat where golden eagles have soared for millenia. Surely when the commission voted what in effect is the dispossession of the rich and varied wildlife which inhabits Rancho San Carlos and the elimination of the blaze of spring wildflowers that graces the slopes of San Francisquito Flats, it could not have considered the original and real residents.

By the same token, a proposal to preserve Rancho San Carlos as a unique recreational preserve, dedicated to the public to be enjoyed by all for generations to come, was hardly considered by anyone. Whatever debate did take place was in fact centered around how many housing units to permit (i.e., 500 or 2,000 or 5,000) not on alternate plans that might have led the way to the preservation of Rancho San Carlos for the public.

Why was it so? I don't know. One thing I do know, however, is that to trade Rancho San Carlos for a hotel, a golf course, and 2,000 homes for the wealthy is an exceptionally poor and short-sighted bargain — for all of us!

In any event, the planning commission has voted. Soon the supervisors will confirm the vote. Mourn the plight of the eagle, the beauty of the land. Soon enough we shall all be diminished!

'Oil baron's vengeance'

Dear Editor:

The magnates of Pebble Beach oil company are about to destroy the beautiful Spanish Bay all because of a vendetta against our community. Spanish Bay is going to be the oil baron's vengeance for not letting the oil companies take over the entire California coastline.

The Spanish Bay project is being sold piece-by-piece to other big industrial corporations all over the world and all of the condominiums already have been sold to commercial interests. In fact the entire Spanish Bay project is being sold in the want ads of the Wall Street Journal.

The reason why these developer-industrialists own and control our coastline is that they use corruption and coercion to force our politicians and the appointed bureaucrats to approve any development project they dream up.

Even the Coastal Commission in California has been corrupted by the greasy oil industrialists. After they sell the Spanish Bay hotel, they will probably bring in oil drilling anyway. The oil industry magnate is upset with our community and now this oil baron wants vengeance.

'It was a shock'

Dear Editor:

Having just returned from a trip to the East Coast, and being very happy to return to the area that I think is the best in the world, it was a shock to go into Carmel and find Lincoln Street blocked off.

What is happening in Carmel? Why does everyone want to increase in size? And why put a building in the middle of a street?

It seems pretty ridiculous to me, especially when the library could easily expand into its own front yard, to say nothing of using the property they already own on Lincoln.

I am decidedly against using Lincoln Street for such a purpose.

EDITOR'S DESK BY ROBERT MISKIMON

Where is the 'true' spirit of Christmas?

CHRISTMAS is the time of year when we are exhorted to be merry, giving, kind, compassionate, and peaceful — all at once. As if the stresses and strains of living our everyday lives weren't enough, along comes the annual Christmas message of love and good cheer.

In fact, many people find these strong and somewhat contradictory signals confusing and hard to manage. The result, for too many, is the so-called "holiday blues" with the symptoms of over-drinking, over-eating, depression and general malaise.

The "holiday blues" are, if nothing else, akin to what was called battle fatigue in World War II — the inevitable result of having pushed the human organism repeatedly beyond its emotional and physiological limits.

The difference between holiday fatigue and battle fatigue is that the former can be regulated. We don't have to fall prey to the pushy commercialism, the trite sentimentality, the hollow "cheer" which often comes from a bottle.

No one knows the "true" meaning of Christmas, since its true meaning is different for each person. Perhaps the key to the real magic, joy and excitement of this holiday lies somewhere in childhood: those sleepless nights awaiting Santa's visit, the shiny new toys, the delicious Christmas foods, the warmth of family and friends.

Although there are individual variations on this theme of love and sharing, the essential message is the same for everyone. It's the same message which Christ sought to spread through his teachings and death: we're here on earth to love and help each other.

Stripped of all the surface trimmings, this essential truth about Christmas is the potential source of the greatest degree of joy. We can all share in the process of loving our fellow man, regardless of our station in life.

Christmas is a time to forgive our neighbor his sins and his humanity, and to focus on those things in him which are Christ-like and divine, just as Christ did for all of us.

Here's hoping your Christmas is joyous and loving.

Harrison Memorial Library board agrees to 'function space' study

HARRISON Memorial Library directors have agreed to hire consultant Ray Holt to prepare an $8,000 "function space analysis."

Directors agreed with a recommendation by Library Director Margaret Pelikan that the study should be undertaken as the basis for possible future library expansion at their Dec. 10 meeting.

The study also is required before the library can apply for federal funding for library expansion available through the Library Services and Construction Act, according to Mrs. Pelikan. Deadline for submission of an application is March of 1985.

Library trustees have commissioned an environmental impact report for the estimated $1.2 million expansion which envisions extension of the library on Lincoln Street to between Ocean and Sixth avenues. The affected portion of Lincoln Street would be closed.

The function space analysis will tabulate future patron population, user needs, collection growth and space requirements. When completed, it can be used as a basis for future library expansion, according to Mrs. Pelikan.

Teacher contract talks remain stalemated

NEGOTIATIONS between the Association of Carmel Teachers and the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education remain stalemated despite the presence of a state mediator.

Holiday deadlines

Because of the Christmas and New Year's holidays, deadlines for editorial material as well as classified, display and legal advertising has been moved to 5 p.m. Thursday.

The altered deadline applies for both the Dec. 27 and Jan. 3 editions of the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Clarification

Evidently, the rash of planning and zoning decisions being pushed through county government overwhelmed us a bit last week — with the confusing result that one pending condominium project was represented as two in Editor's Desk.

Ruth Blanco, mediator with the state Public Employees Relations Board, presided over her first negotiating session Dec. 18.

However, there is no change in the stalemate, according to a statement released that afternoon by teacher union President Imogene Speiser.

Mrs. Speiser told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that teachers have asked for a .54 percent salary hike in addition to the 2.73 percent already offered by the district.

However, 2.27 percent of that offer is to pay the staff for teaching four extra days this year.

Teachers also want "a definitive commitment to be the first priority in building of next year's budget," Mrs. Speiser said.

County supervisors scheduled a special meeting Dec. 17 to consider zoning for the proposed 36-unit Mahroom condominium project in the High Meadow area, as part of some 236 units proposed in that sector.

There is no 36-unit condo project proposed opposite Point Lobos.

Supervisors may take another look at proposed Spanish Bay project

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors may get another crack at the proposed Spanish Bay Resort complex in Pebble Beach.

A re-examination of the proposed Spanish Bay project — especially its impact on traffic — is a top priority of newly-elected Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas of Monterey.

Karas and Karin Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley will be sworn in as new supervisors Jan. 8. Both generally are considered to be more environmentally-oriented than their predecessors, Michal Moore and William Peters.

Peters and Moore helped push through approval of Spanish Bay during their last few months in office. The $125 million project is being developed by the Pebble Beach Co.

However, Karas plans to seek a way to have the new board of supervisors review the proposed 270-room, 80-condominium and golf course complex at Spanish Bay near Pacific Grove.

"Spanish Bay will be another thing that we must have re-examined, especially the effect it will have on the environment," Karas told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

The focal point of Karas' anti-Spanish Bay argument is traffic.

"Traffic is my biggest concern. Today is living proof what many of us were concerned about two years ago," he said.

Latest studies by the Monterey County Transportation Commission indicate that traffic capacity on Highway 68 is at "level F," which is maximum use, Karas explained.

Pebble Beach Co. has plans to open a new Del Monte Forest access gate on Highway 68 near Haul Road. The gate will be controlled by a signal right and traffic leaving the forest will be allowed to only turn west to get on Highway 1 at Carmel Hill.

"I want to make sure that as much of the Monterey Peninsula, which includes Big Sur and Carmel Valley, is protected and preserved in a style that I can leave to my grandchildren and still be able to say you've got something special here," said the 62-year-old Karas.

"I really come from a people-philosophy. I'm more concerned about whether it will benefit the people and not the developer."

Karas has an ally in Carmel Councilman

David Maradei, who believes supervisors should amend the Del Monte Forest Land Use Program to scale down the size of the Spanish Bay resort project.

MARADEI, Karas and Carmel Mayor Charlotte Townsend were among a dozen or so opponents of the project to speak before the state Coastal Commission Dec. 12.

Although Karas spoke as a private citizen, Maradei was the representative for the Carmel City Council and Mayor Townsend spoke as the representative for the mayors of Monterey and Pacific Grove.

The Coastal Commission continued the public hearing on the Spanish Bay use permit until either the February session in San Francisco or March meeting in Carmel.

"Traffic is my biggest concern. Today is living proof what many of us were concerned about two years ago," Karas said.

Most of the opponents asked the commission to schedule the hearing in Carmel. A decision on when Spanish Bay will be addressed again is expected by next week.

"To me it's really a classic confrontation between public interest and private good," Maradei said after the meeting.

"The Coastal Commission was established to protect the public against unscrupulous development of the coast," the councilman continued.

Claims by the Pebble Beach Co. that the project will help restore dunes mined-out decades ago is merely a ruse to get its project approved, Maradei believes.

"Pebble Beach is selling this project as a dune restoration," he said. "They're not rehabilitating the dunes. It's a for-profit project. They will say anything to bring this project to fruition."

Maradei pointed out that 75 percent of Carmel voters supported the Coastal Act of 1972 that established the Coastal Commission as a regulatory agency for oceanfront land uses.

"That tells me the voters of the area do want the coastline protected against that kind of developer," he said.

"But it is difficult to hold ground against a large corporation willing to spend enormous amounts of money."

The city needs to worry about the project because 90 percent of visitors to the peninsula eventually walk on Ocean Avenue, Maradei contends.

"Spanish Bay will not only add to the congestion, but it will create safety problems for residents because of slowed access to Community Hospital (on Highway 68)," Maradei added.

He also believes the peninsula already has more hotel rooms than it needs.

Maradei claims that a compilation of all of the approved projects on the peninsula will add another 1,500 motel rooms to the area.

"We don't need additional motel rooms on the peninsula," he said.

THE POTENTIAL reopening of discussions about Spanish Bay on the supervisorial level is not the only threat to the project.

Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver has ordered a Jan. 25 hearing on the environmental impact report for the water reclamation project to be developed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is the lead agency in a lawsuit that seeks new review of the environment impact report for the proposed water reclamation plant at Sawmill Gulch.

Other petitioners in the lawsuit are the city of Carmel, the Carmel Sanitary District and the California-American Water Co.

The Carmel Sanitary District is named as a petitioner based on preliminary information received by the water district. The sanitary district board is to discuss its involvement in the suit when it meets at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20 at Carmel City Hall.

Pebble Beach Community Services District Stan Kawa brushed off the lawsuit. He claimed the board conducted "numerous" workshops on the proposed project.

And the water district was informed of the proposal as it proceeded through the planning process, Kawa said.

Development of Spanish Bay hinges on the reclamation project, which is being planned for construction to coincide with the resort completion.

The $9 to $11 million reclamation project would provide an extra 600,000 gallons of sewage treatment capacity for Pebble Beach.

Currently the Pebble Beach district contracts with the Carmel Sanitary District for disposal of 800,000 gallons of sewage per year, or one-third the treatment capacity of the plant.

However, Pebble Beach does not have the capacity now to service Spanish Bay and the existing lots of record that may be developed.

The reclamation project also would alleviate fears that Spanish Bay will not have an adequate water supply, Kawa said.

The treated effluent will be used to irrigate the golf courses in Pebble Beach. That additional fresh water not needed for golf course irrigation can then be used by the county for other projects, Kawa explained.

The cities of Monterey and Pacific Grove also have gone on record in opposition to Spanish Bay.

And Pebble Beach resident Janice O'Brien, chairwoman of the 600-member environmentally-oriented Forest Committee, has threatened to mount a referendum attempt to get voters to overturn any decision by the Coastal Commission to approve the project.

Maradei suggested that supervisors — if the Coastal Commission refers the issue back to the board — should order an advisory ballot measure.

"I would not be opposed to an advisory measure and let the public decide. It's that significant of an issue," he said.

Carmel police are promoted

Two Carmel police sergeants have been appointed to the rank of lieutenant.

Don Fuesel and Jon Bowman will assume the new positions Jan. 1.

The new positions are part of a reorganization within the department made possible through the elimination of a sergeant's position and the retirement of former Assistant Chief Bob Fischer. The assistant chief position is to be eliminated.

The police department will be divided into two divisions: administrative and operations.

Fuesel will be in charge of the administrative division and Bowman is to command the operations division.

Land trust launches redwood effort

Seeks to buy two parcels set for Big Sur logging

THE BIG SUR Land Trust has launched a campaign to purchase redwood lands threatened with logging.

Specifically, the organization has targeted 1,160 acres owned by the Federal Land Bank located 12 miles south of Carmel and six miles up Palo Colorado Road. The lands, if purchased, would remain in protected open space.

A second purchase objective is about 80 acres of redwoods owned by Scarborough Lumber Co. of Santa Cruz near the New Camaldoli Hermitage in Lucia, according to executive director Brian Steen.

The former property was to be logged by the Philo Lumber Co. but was received by the land bank when the lumber firm defaulted.

Although a timber harvest permit has been approved for logging of the Scarborough property, a temporary restraining order issued by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver blocks logging until legal questions are resolved.

Benedictine Monks at the nearby hermitage have complained that logging operations would threaten the survival of the redwoods and disturb their serenity.

"A memorial fund has been established in the memory of the late Richard Hirschkind to be used to help purchase redwood properties down the coast," Steen said. Hirschkind — a civil engineer for Del Monte Properties and for the city of Seaside — was an ardent conservationist.

"It was obvious to him that people should coexist with plants and animals and that the latter two required protection from sometimes over-zealous efforts to use, dominate, re-shape, groom or annihilate them," Steen said.

Preliminary negotiations have been started with representatives of both the defaulted Philo lands as well as the Scarborough property, Steen said.

The bank has established an asking price of $3.4 million for the former, while estimated sale price of the latter is about $500,000, according to Steen.

"The Big Sur Land Trust believes Big Sur's redwoods should not be cut," Steen said. "The most permanent way to stop the logging is to buy the land. Therefore, we are beginning immediately a fund-raising campaign to save the Palo Colorado trees."

"Growing for thousands of years, these virgin redwoods are old and unique. Identified by University of California scientists as a biological treasure, they grow in a canyon established as the steepest slope in the continental USA."

"The plant diversity is remarkable. Scientists found in this canyon an incredible number of ecological systems living inter-dependently. They want to study those genetically unique redwoods. Logging would destroy forever all of this and ruin pristine Limekiln Creek as well."

Steen said gifts of some $12,000 already have been received, as well as pledges for significantly higher amounts. Those who wish to make donations to the Richard W. Hirschkind Memorial Fund may do so by contacting the Big Sur Land Trust at 625-5523, or at P.O. Box 221864, Carmel, Calif. 93922.

ed a fund-raising campaign to purchase those lands for open space preservation. (Steve Crouch photo).

Search for Carmel school chief will cost $13,525

THE EXTENSIVE nationwide search for a new superintendent will cost the Carmel Unified School District up to $13,525.

That is the figure included in a report on the cost analysis and schedule for the superintendent search released to the board of education Dec. 10.

The board has hired consultant Elaine Boyce of Sacramento to find candidates to replace former Supt. William Rand, who resigned Oct. 8.

The search will cost between $9,971 and $13,525, Interim Supt. Rich Hawkins said in his report.

A major chunk of the price tag is Ms. Boyce's fee — between $6,900 and $8,900.

Additional personal expenses for the consultant to be paid by the district include: "seven to 10 round trips from Sacramento to Carmel at $88 per trip ($616 to $880)" and "room and board expenses associated with trips to Carmel ($680 to $1,020)."

Hawkins listed other expenses as: printing of the brochure and additional duplications ($375 to $475); postage ($220 to $300); answering service for community interviews and other telephone expenses ($200 to $350); travel costs for finalists to visit for another interview ($500 to $800); and travel expenses for trustees to visit the top candidate's community ($500 to $800).

Trustees have indicated the candidates who travel to Carmel for the initial interview will have to pay their own expenses.

The board should hire a new superintendent in the week of April 29 to May 3, according to the schedule presented by Hawkins.

A March 15 deadline for applications has been established. The job announcement and recruitment already is underway. Ms. Boyce has mailed 850 recruitment brochures.

Ms. Boyce is to meet with staff, parents and the community from Jan. 14-16 to help develop the qualifications for a superintendent. She will continue those meetings to Jan. 17-18 if necessary.

A community committee will meet Feb. 1-15 to develop specific criteria for superintendent qualifications. The board is to decide on those qualifications by Feb. 25.

By March 29 a trio of education professionals is to "paper screen" the applicants and present recommendations to the board on which candidates should be invited for interviews.

Candidates are to be interviewed April 6-17 with the "specific interview process to be determined at a later date," the report stated.

However, in past discussions trustees have indicated they would like a small community committee to also interview candidates.

The board then would visit the applicant's district April 19-29. An announcement would be made by May 3.

Trustees have listed the minimum salary for the new superintendent at $50,000, plus benefits. The salary is open to negotiation. The board also plans to offer the new superintendent a multi-year contract.

New supervisors decry planning rush

By MICHAEL GARDNER
(First of two parts)

SUPERVISORS—elect Sam Karas and Karin Strasser Kauffman have watched helplessly in recent weeks as lame-duck supervisors Michal Moore and Bill Peters have rushed through major land use decisions.

Since the November election — when the more environmentally-minded Karas and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman won election to the board — supervisors have tackled a string of controversial topics with great alacrity.

Some observers wonder whether there has been an orchestrated last-minute push to get developments approved before the new supervisors take office Jan. 8.

But both Karas and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman promise a thorough re-examination of most controversial decisions to see if the actions can be overturned.

Peters — whose pro-development efforts include Carmel Valley Ranch and the proposed projects at Spanish Bay, El Sur Ranch and Point Lobos Ranch — is to be replaced in the Fifth District by Mrs. Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley.

Moore, who has allied himself with Peters to vote pro-development, will give up his Fourth District seat to Sam Karas of Monterey.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman and Karas both ran on environmentally-minded platforms to defeat candidates generally considered more pro-growth — Howard Brunn in the Fifth District and Charles Benson in the Fourth District.

The latest example of this rush is approval of the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan, which was adopted on a 3-2 vote during a rare special session Monday, Dec. 17.

Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas sided with Moore and Peters while Supervisors Marc Del Piero of Castroville and Dusan Petrovic of King City dissented because they wanted the new board to review the area plan.

The entire area plan was pushed through by Moore, Peters and Mrs. Shipnuck with little public comment.

The board allowed for two hours of public testimony on a plan that was developed after months of citizen committee meetings and about half a dozen meetings before the planning commission.

To ensure that the area plan was voted on by the present board, supervisors even scheduled a rare special session for Monday, Dec. 17 to review the document. It was during the infrequent special meetings that the plan was approved.

ALTHOUGH THE Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan encompasses a large county-wide area, it does have a tremendous significance for the Carmel area.

Some of the more controversial Fifth District land use issues in the plan include High Meadows, Rancho San Carlos and the Canada de la Segunda extension road between Carmel Valley Road and Highway 68.

Supervisors did make one pro-environment decision in the area plan by zoning the Rancho San Carlos property at one unit per 160 acres.

That zoning designation means the Oppenheimer family only can develop 125 residences on the more than 20,000-acre spread in the hills east of Carmel Valley Road.

The Oppenheimers originally wanted to develop a rural community of 3,800 units. The planning commission had included permissive zoning in the plan that would have allowed only 2,000 residences.

The one unit per 160-acre designation was even less than what Mrs. Strasser Kauffman and Karas had hoped for. They had voiced support for a maximum development of 500 residences.

Despite this one plus mark in the conservation column for Moore and Peters, they also have tried to push through other major land use decisions within the last weeks of their tenure on the board.

Some of these efforts have succeeded, while others were defeated. Some of the more controversial issues to be tackled are:

- Approval of the 270-room, 80-condominium and golf course resort at Spanish Bay in Pebble Beach. Approval was granted over stringent objections by many forest residents, and the cities of Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel. (See related story this issue.)

- Approval of the El Sur Ranch development agreement that will allow development of up to 98 residential units, 100 motel rooms and a 200-seat restaurant on the ranch that stretches from Molera State Park north to Bixby Bridge.

- A determined but vain attempt to get completed the final phase of development at Carmel Valley Ranch.

First supervisors overturned a planning commission decision that would have required Carmel Valley Ranch to develop a focused environmental impact report for its 132 unit final phase called Oak Place.

THEN supervisors scheduled weeks ahead a hearing on the subdivision tentative map for Dec. 18, which would give the planning commission only one look at the proposed development.

But commissioners decided Dec. 12 they want to tour the property and postponed action until Jan. 9 — the day after Mrs. Strasser Kauffman and Karas will take office.

- Adoption of 39 new "findings" to justify why they approved the Carmel Valley Master Plan. The findings are the result of another city of Carmel court challenge to the validity of the master plan and its accompanying EIR.

- A push by Peters to get passage of an amendment to the Carmel Area Local Coastal Program that would have allowed development of a motel, conference center and restaurant on Huckleberry Hill as part of the Point Lobos Ranch project.

However, the proposal by Peters failed.

But despite this flurry of activity, it is not certain that the final legacies left by Moore and Peters will survive 1985.

Karas and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman, in separate interviews with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, say amendments to several actions will be forthcoming if legally possible.

Karas and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman agree that some decisions made the past few weeks need to be reviewed and possibly overturned.

And they both decried the evident haste by the present board in some of its major decisions.

"Yes, definitely there is a push in land use in particular," Mrs. Strasser Kauffman said. "In many cases I see it as undue haste. We will have to spend a great deal of time and energy undoing oversights and hasty decisions."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman especially is concerned about the fast progress of the now-adopted Greater Monterey Peninsula Area plan.

"If they finish it," she said before the Dec. 17 adoption, "we'll just have to open it up again."

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman admitted it is difficult to sit in the audience and watch these decisions being made.

"At this point right now it is very frustrating to sit down in the chamber and not vote," she said.

'WE NEED more time for public input and discussions among each other," she said. "When it comes to land use planning, it's simply impossible to speed up."

The final phase of development at Carmel Valley Ranch is another example of irresponsible speed, she said.

"This is a perfect example of what undue haste will do," Mrs. Strasser Kauffman said. "The project sounds reasonable until you look at the lay of the land. It's steep, extensive forestation, unstable and there's landslide possibilities. All the rules we have in place are being violated."

But she is not necessarily opposed to some development at Carmel Valley Ranch, which already has authorization for total buildout of 400 residences plus a 100-unit hotel.

"I have no objection to building it out. (But) this is being put on sensitive land. We're just asking for trouble by doing that," she said.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman questioned the decision by supervisors to pre-schedule weeks in advance a hearing on the subdivision map before the board had decided on the focused EIR and prior to the planning commission looking at the plans.

"A crucial part of master planning is sufficient notice. In this case I see a tampering with that. That's really making a sham out of the public notification process," said Mrs. Strasser Kauffman, who did point out that the supervisors' scheduling was legal.

Although she would like to vote on Spanish Bay, Mrs. Strasser Kauffman questioned whether supervisors can re-examine the resort complex in Pebble Beach.

"It's really out of the control of supervisors. There are a number of things that can happen. The Coastal Commission is the key," said Mrs. Strasser Kauffman in reference to the SUPERVISORS-elect Sam Karas (left) of Monterey and Karin Strasser Kauffman of Carmel Valley are angry that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors appears to be pushing through some major projects with undue haste. upcoming Coastal Commission hearing on the project in either February or March.

MRS. STRASSER KAUFFMAN does not offer much hope to those who think the new board can back out of the El Sur Ranch development agreement.

"It's just about impossible to change it from our end," she said. "The numbers have been guaranteed."

But she does paint a brighter picture for the Point Lobos Ranch project across Highway 1 from the state reserve.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman plans a close look at the proposed resort and residential complex.

She said the LCP includes permissive zoning for the project, but the number of residential and hotel units still can be changed.

Although she does intend to take a tough stance on development, Mrs. Strasser Kauffman does not see herself as casting blanket no-growth votes when she takes office.

"I have no vendetta against developers. I just want to see careful planning," she said. "I certainly will give a fair hearing to the developers."

Karas too sees a big pro-development push as the last days of Supervisors Moore and Peters wind down.

"I think they're pushing plans through very rapidly," he said. "But it's in their purview. I think it's understandable that they would like to get as much accomplished as they can before they leave."

Karas hopes he and Mrs. Strasser Kauffman will somehow get a chance to review these decisions.

"I feel the same way as she does. If there is an opportunity to review the development then we welcome that opportunity."

Karas already has had one wish come true. He wants to look at Carmel Valley Ranch again. When the planning commission delayed action, it made it possible for Karas to do just that.

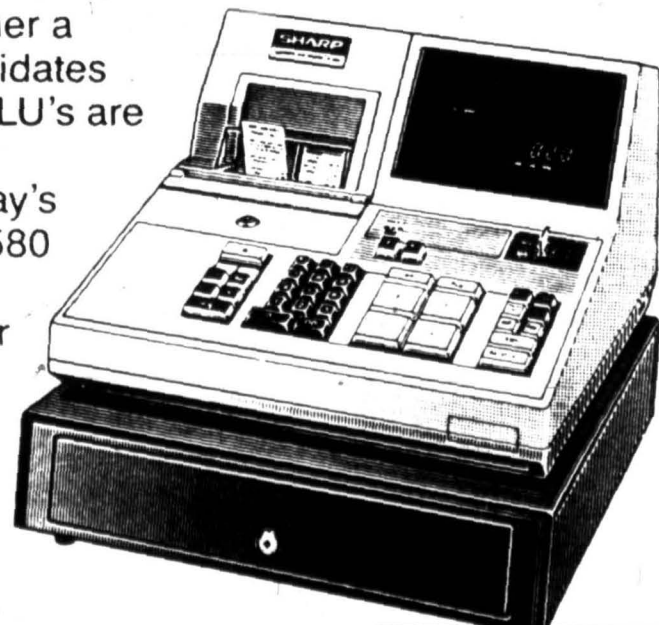

"I would really like to review it. If there's some possible way we can, I'd like to bring it back," Karas said before the planning commission delay.

School recall committee won't debate Fenton

MEMBERS of the Carmel Unified School District Recall Committee will not debate Trustee Robert Fenton.

In a letter to Fenton, the committee charged that his demand for a public debate "is in our view an attempt to divert attention from the sorry record the three of you have created in 1984."

Fenton, board President Susan Bromfield and Trustee James Yates are targeted for recall by the committee.

Fenton last week issued a statement that challenged committee spokesman Richard Stott to a debate.

The committee letter stated that "members feel that campaigning would be best left to avowed board candidates when the election takes place."

"You refer to our efforts as 'asinine' and suggest we lack 'guts.' We of the committee have little interest in name-calling and prefer to let an informed electorate evaluate your performance," the letter concluded.

In a separate statement, the committee has rejected a request from the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook for a personal interview with Stott or one of its leaders, such as John Palshaw, Bob Giraudo, Stephanie Johnson, Bill Daniels or Reid Wagstaff.

The committee has insisted that all questions be submitted in writing. Members want to discuss the questions at their weekly meeting and prepare a written response.

However, the committee did note in the statement that it has obtained "thousands" of signatures of registered voters on its recall petitions.

To place the recall before voters, the proponents must obtain 3,463 signatures of the approximately 17,000 registered voters who reside within the Carmel Unified School District boundaries.

Deadline for the petitions is Feb. 28, 1985.

The committee stated that the petitions are being circulated by 144 people, 101 of whom are community members "who have no employment connections" with the district.

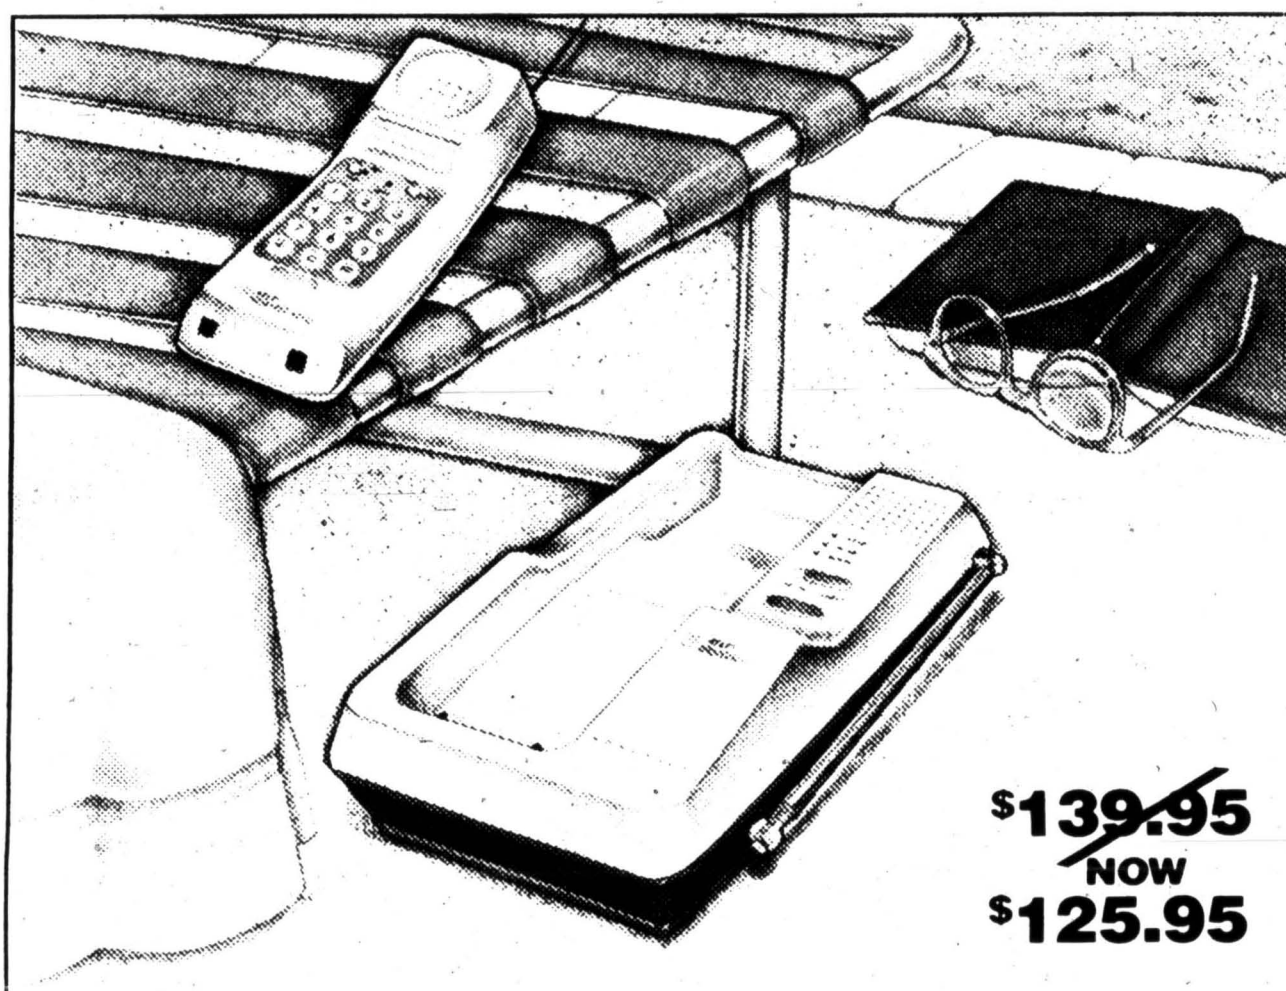

The last statement is in reference to supporters of the three trustees who have claimed that the recall movement is led by teachers disgruntled by a 1 percent salary increase offer.

'Adopt-A-Family' program has mushroomed

MORE THAN 175 families who have been "adopted" by local individuals and firms received their shipments of Christmas food and gifts this week through the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

The "Adopt-A-Family" program has mushroomed fourfold since last year, according to program director Marie Gesselman. Of the 178 families, 149 are migrant farm-worker families in the Salinas Valley and 28 live on the Monterey Peninsula.

Ninety-eight members of Carmel Presbyterian Church "adopted" needy families, while 80 individuals from other churches and groups participated, she said. Total donations as of Dec. 9 were values in excess of $3,500.

Boxes containing food and gifts, plus turkeys and chickens, were dispatched from the church Saturday and Tuesday mornings, as volunteers helped to deliver the gifts.

Names of needy families have been provided through churches and social service agencies, and several businesses — including some in Carmel — have "adopted" families this year, according to Ms. Gesselman.

Many of the donors specify certain families they wish to assist, while others simply make general donations, she said.

The two gift options outlined in the program are food items not to exceed $20, including a $5 check to be used toward purchase of a chicken or turkey, and new gifts within a $5 limit.

The former category includes canned tomato sauce, canned fruit, canned vegetables, oatmeal, peanut butter, flour, rice, and pinto beans. The latter includes such items as baby dishes, stuffed animals, socks, jewelry, books, cosmetics, and puzzles.

Monterey Presbyterian Church members got involved with the program this year, "adopted" a number of families, and accompanied Carmel Presbyterian Church members when they delivered the gifts Dec. 18.

Ms. Gesselman said she has been particularly gratified by some of the comments of donors this year about the program:

- "I'm having a hard time dealing with the contrasts. I see these kids so appreciative of a $5 gift, when my own are asking for home videos. I wonder if it's my children who are the poorer."

- "When I was wrapping the package for my family, my little four-year-old asked: 'Where's mine?' I explained to her that there would always be something under the tree for her, but this might be the only Christmas present these children have."

- "I'm not rich — in fact, I don't even have a real job. But I'm very blessed in comparison to these families. This Adopt-A-Family program has given me an opportunity to discuss the real meaning of Christmas with my kids."

- "When I was buying wrapping paper, I told the clerk I was wrapping gifts for Vietnamese migrant families. So he gave the paper to me!"

MEMBERS OF the Carmel and Monterey Presbyterian Churches traveled to Soledad and Greenfield Dec. 18 to bring presents and food to needy families. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Gamble sale agreement reached

A TENTATIVE agreement has been reached between the city of Carmel and Tescher-LeVett Inc. for joint purchase of the Gamble estate for $1.4 million.

The agreement is conditioned on acceptance of the offer by the heirs, who are expected to make a decision by Jan. 3. And the agreement must be ratified by the city council when it meets Jan. 8.

City staff, Mayor Charlotte Townsend and Council member Robert Stephenson negotiated the deal with Karen LeVett and Chris Tescher.

The proposal specifies:

- That the 14 lots will be reduced to nine.

The city will own four of the nine lots. The city then will sell the four lots.

- Tescher-LeVett will own the house and has agreed to restore the structure.

- The city will pay $685,000 for the 28,200 sq. ft. while Tescher-LeVett's cost for its 27,800 sq. ft. will be $715,000.

An announcement on how the city plans to finance its share is to be made within a week.

The city originally submitted a $1.2 million offer for the Gamble estate, between Lincoln and Dolores streets and 13th and Santa Lucia avenues.

However, the heirs rejected that offer. The council withdrew from active bidding, but asked staff to pursue a possible joint venture with a private company or individual.

State board lifts ban on sanitary district Carmel Bay discharge

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE STATE Water Resources Control Board has cleared a path for the Carmel Sanitary District to provide needed sewage services to the proposed Rancho Odello project.

The board voted Dec. 5 in Sacramento to rescind resolutions that prohibited the district from discharge of effluent into Carmel Bay from May through October, in effect since 1980.

The prohibition was based on the designation of Carmel Bay as an "Area of Special Biological Significance," but sanitary officials have maintained all along that no evidence of pollution in the bay can be traced to discharge of treated effluent.

With the rescission of the discharge prohibition, the way is now cleared for the

'If the board grants our request, we could lift the ban which has been in effect for years,' said Manager Michael Zambory.

Regional Water Quality Control Board to increase the discharging capacity of the Carmel plant so surrounding areas can be developed, according to manager Michael Zambory.

The regional board is to meet March 19 in Carmel to consider the request for an increase in treatment capacity from the present 2.4 million gallons per day (mgd) to 3 or 4 mgd.

"If the board grants our request, we could lift the annexation ban which has been in effect for years," Zambory told the Carmel

Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

Projects which could be sewered if the discharge capacity is boosted include the proposed 162-unit Rancho Odello development just south of the Carmel River, as well as the proposed Point Lobos Ranch, Carmel Valley Overview, and the Beth Israel Synagogue.

"The regional board would find it hard not to increase our capacity based on the state board's action," Zambory said. "If the regional board acts, then anyone who has development approvals but no sewage will be able to get service."

The action of the state board lifting the discharge ban is subject to approval of the Environmental Protection Agency, as well as annual monitoring by the sanitary district of discharge effects in the protected bay waters.

Also, the state water board required sanitary officials to submit a complete study by July 1, 1987 on effects of the year-round discharge and to submit similar studies every decade.

"We've had nothing to show any harm to that bay after many years of monitoring," Zambory said.

BECAUSE of the natural flushing action of Carmel Bay and the fact that the Carmel River flows into the bay directly over the sanitary district discharge outfall line, pollution has never been a problem, Zambory said.

"Our discharge equals only 4 percent of the total flow of the river every year," he said. "Only .17 percent of the suspended solids carried by the river into the bay come from our discharge."

Zambory said district directors may ask the regional board to boost discharge capacity to 4 mgd so the Carmel district can provide treatment services needed for planned development in Del Monte Forest.

MODERNIZATION of the Carmel Sanitary District plant at a cost of $6.6 million includes renovation of a circular digester and replacement of its roof for about $90,000. The project also will involve installation of new pumping equipment which will prevent future discharge of raw sewage into the Carmel River. But the Environmental Protection Agency has filed a violation notice against the district for past discharges. (Robert Miskimon photo.)

The Pebble Beach Community Services District — which purchases one-third the treatment capacity of the Carmel district — has announced plans to build its own 600,000-gallon-per-day treatment plant to serve the proposed 270-unit Spanish Bay resort development and other planned residential construction.

Pebble Beach officials unveiled their plan after the EPA denied an $8 million grant to enable the Carmel district to complete a water reclamation project, which would have provided treated water for golf course irrigation.

However, the Pebble Beach project hit a legal snag last week when the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, the Carmel Sanitary District, California-American Water Co., and the city of Carmel filed a lawsuit in Monterey County Superior Court which challenged the adequacy of an environmental impact report for the project.

Unless the Carmel Sanitary District received permission from the state to increase its treatment capacity, it can not provide sewage treatment services to planned development in Pebble Beach.

"Our board is not certain whether to ask for 4 mgd capacity, of which our plant is capable," Zambory said. "We don't need 4 mgd, but if we got it then Pebble Beach would get 1.3 mgd, which is more than they need to develop the entire Del Monte Forest."

Whether the Environmental Protection Agency will agree to the state-approved lifting of the discharge ban remains an open question.

The EPA has filed a violation against the Carmel Sanitary District for discharge of raw sewage into the Carmel River on several occasions when its pumping equipment failed, Zambory will inform sanitary directors when they meet at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 20 in Carmel City Hall.

THE EPA charges relate to several instances when the district has allowed raw sewage into the Carmel River when pumps failed because of electrical outages or storms, Zambory said.

"We're building a new influent pump station which is supposed to be finished by June of 1985 to take care of the problem," Zambory said. "There's nothing EPA can do with this except harass us."

The EPA has required the sanitary district to furnish it with complete records of its discharge since 1980, and to report all incidents of raw sewage discharge to the EPA office in San Francisco.

"It's just a whole bunch of paperwork," Zambory said.

In other business, the board of directors will receive a report on efforts to upgrade diffusers on the sewage outfall line which sits under 35 feet of water in Carmel Bay.

The district had contracted with a firm to add five more diffusers to the line, but the contractor backed out when he discovered that the outfall line is buried under five feet of sand, Zambory said.

Evidently, the sand was deposited several years ago by the Carmel River but the outfall line has continued to discharge through percolation into the sand, he explained.

The board now must consider solicitation for bids for a contractor who will employ a barge to remove the sand from the outfall, install risers, and replace the diffusers — at about double the original cost of $50,000, Zambory said.

In another matter, sanitary directors are to decide whether to purchase an easement from the state to lay pipes for new standby pumps being installed as part of the $6.6 million modernization of the plant.

The district already owns an easement along beachfront property adjacent to homes in Carmel Meadows, but several property owners have planted large cypress trees in the easement, Zambory explained.

To avoid cutting down the trees, the sanitary district asked state parks officials for an easement to install the pipes on state-owned land. The state has quoted a price of $13,000 for a 1,000-by-10-foot strip of land — much more than the district feels the easement is worth, according to Zambory.

Now directors must decide whether they are willing to pay the $13,000 to the state for the easement to leave the cypress trees intact, or to exercise their legal right to cut down the trees and pay the pipes in the district easement.

FOR THE THIRD year, the Carmel Sanitary District plant has been designated "Plant of the Year" by a three-member panel chosen from the Monterey Bay Section of the California Water Pollution Control Association. The award was based on safety features of the plant, efficiency of operation, and capability of the operating personnel, who gathered (above) for a photograph. The Carmel facility also won the award in 1979 and 1980.

Reminders for a safe holiday for your pets

The Monterey County SPCA has a few reminders to make this holiday safer and more enjoyable for pets, as well as for people:

- Traditional holiday plants, such as mistletoe, holly, poinsettia and Jerusalem cherry, should be kept out of your pet's reach. They contain substances that, if ingested, can cause severe illness in a cat or dog.

- Dangling electrical cords, breakable ornaments, lit candles and garbage cans overflowing with turkey bones may pose a danger to the curious or mischievous pet. Place these items out of reach when pets are around.

- No matter how cute the begging, resist the temptation to indulge your pet with holiday goodies. A sudden change in diet could cause intestinal problems that both you and your pet would regret.

Supervisors approve lots in High Meadow

THIRTY SINGLE-family lots in the High Meadow II area have been granted approval by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors at their Dec. 11 session also approved the creation of four large lots ranging in size from two to eight acres on the 71-acre High Meadow site, east side of Highway 1 off Outlook Drive.

The four large lots eventually will be used for development of up to 90 condominiums. However, the condominium project still has to be approved by supervisors at a later date.

Under current zoning up to 122 units can be developed at High Meadow — the 90 condominiums and 30 single-family lots. The 30 single family lots will be sold undeveloped, project planner Don Goodhue said.

The staff at Spencer's Stationery would like to express our appreciation to our local friends for their patronage during the past year. Wishing you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

City council to wait for library study to comment on expansion

THE DRAFT environmental impact report on the Harrison Memorial Library expansion is not expected to be available for public review until after the first of the year.

And that means the Carmel City Council will wait until then before it comments on the suitability of the expansion.

That decision was reached Dec. 4 in response to Councilwoman Helen Arnold's concerns that an expansion sketch included in a survey of business people is misleading and could unfairly sway public opinion against the estimated $1 million project.

The survey of merchants is part of the EIR preparation process now underway by Earth Science Associates, the city-hired consultants.

The city has plans to expand the library on to Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues. The portion of Lincoln Street would be closed.

As part of the project the city would build a walkway to connect Ocean and Sixth avenues. The walkway size is what concerns Mrs. Arnold.

She is worried about a "misleading" sketch of the project that indicates a narrow 12-foot wide "alley" rather than a walkway.

Mrs. Arnold wants to ensure that business people who answer the EIR survey understand that the walkway actually would be 43 feet wide.

That is why Mrs. Arnold wanted to discuss the EIR and project alternatives during the Dec. 4 council meeting.

But Mrs. Arnold has been advised by city staff that it would be inappropriate for the council to take any action until after the EIR is submitted for public review and comments in early January.

The council also has been advised that a wider walkway plus 13 other expansion alternatives will be reviewed as part of the environmental impact report.

Mrs. Arnold agreed to the delay. And she remains steadfastly supportive of the expansion idea.

"The objections of business people in the area I believe are unfounded. It is people on foot that patronize the stores, not people in cars," she wrote in a Nov. 30 memo to the council.

"If we use the space at Sixth and Lincoln (the corner lots) to create parking and restrooms we needn't be ashamed of, I am convinced it can be a benefit to not only library users, but shoppers as well."

There has been some organized opposition, including a petition drive, against closing Lincoln Street.

Opponents fear the closure and expansion would cause traffic problems, result in lost parking spaces, block views and destroy the character of the original Maybeck-style building.

IN OTHER action Dec. 4, the council:

- Authorized a resolution to be sent to the Public Utilities Commission that takes a stand on two issues.

The resolution urges the PUC to seek legislation that would afford more local involvement in Nuclear Regulatory Commission decisions that affect the state.

And the resolution restates previous council opposition to any proposal by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to pass on to consumers the costs of the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant near San Luis Obispo.

PG&E has asked the commission for a rate increase based on the costs of Diablo Canyon.

- Scheduled a town hall meeting for 4 p.m. Jan. 22 at Carpenter Hall in the Sunset Center complex.

- Sent a letter of appreciation to Jon Raggett for his work as chairman of the Carmel Beach Rehabilitation Task Force.

- Adopted a resolution of appreciation for Dorothy Grimshaw, a Carmel police desk officer who recently retired after 10 years service. She previously served as a secretary in city hall for five years.

THE VALLEY SAGE

BY VICTORIA ANDREWS

River closure decided

LET US now cheer the efforts of Ed Stoddard, who has completed with success his year-long campaign for a fishing closure of the Carmel River when the flow is slow.

Stoddard told the Sage the closure will take effect when the river is running at less than 200 cubic feet per second. He estimated this ruling by the Department of Fish and Game will reduce the number of sanctioned fishing days by one-half.

A desire to protect the steelhead spawned his lobby through the state bureaucracy which, according to Stoddard, will probably start to enforce the new law in January — or whenever the river is hazardingly shallow for the fish.

However, there was a tradeoff — one which may not keep the steelhead as protected as Stoddard had hoped. Because of the expected reduction in the number of days when the hooks may fly legally into the stream, Fish and Game has opened the season seven days a week. Up to now, three days weekly had been the allotment.

Several residents of the Valley who are actively involved in the preservation of the local habitat wrote letters of protest concerning the seven-day plan. But Stoddard said that despite his efforts to contain the period, the decision to expand it was already made before he appeared before Fish and Game commissioners in Los Angeles last week.

That particular trading bead strikes me wrong. It begs the question of saving the fish, and it may annoy riverside residents who traditionally have allowed fishermen to cross their property unhindered. Fish and Game should have consulted the local property owners before handing down a ruling most people didn't know was in the offing. Besides, something's awry when a decision is made in Los Angeles about the Carmel River.

"Steady, steady, steady," was the rhythmic chant over the weekend in the Valley as Olympic show jump rider Anne Kursinski coached 32 riders over fences at Rancho Laureles and Rushwood.

Ms. Kursinski, who was part of the victorious U.S. Olympic team at Los Angeles, gave four sessions clinics here through the organizational efforts of Valley resident Ginny Hawes, whose daughter Carol had been one of Ms. Kursinski's first students.

As she kept a close eye on the methods of eight participants in each clinic, she tailored her coaching to the needs of each student. However, she made some general observations that show the thinking of the winner of the individual gold medal at the 1983 Pan American Games.

"I like to see effective riding," she told her students. "Equitation has done something to make stilted riders. I'd rather see you overdo than underdo. Functional is beautiful."

Rode they did, under cold morning clouds that turned loose a freezing rain by Saturday afternoon. Nobody quit, except a few horses at a few jumps.

Ms. Kursinski cajoled and critiqued and occasionally sprang aboard a horse to settle him down or demonstrate a point (with superb equitation, too.)

"Get your tongue out of your cheek," she said to one rider in what I thought was a vote for an unbidden tongue. But no, she felt that the rider wasn't putting himself into quite the necessary frame of mind to get the game plan.

"I never really jump my horses (for schooling) once the show season has started," she explained. "Only poles and low fences. Too much, too big takes the heart out of the horse and rider. I'll jump anything in the show ring, but a horse has only so many jumps in him. They already know what to do."

Her tuning for the students — of whom she said: "You all ride very well" — included extensive exercises in jumping out of hand, equestrian talk for keeping one's hands off the horse's neck instead following the jumper's head movement with the arms in a straight line.

Ms. Kursinski's cumulative message to the amiable assemblage was to look ahead and, most importantly, think ahead.

Trainer Josh Landon concurred: "The whole secret to riding is concentration," while clinic participant Desiree Martin softly offered this insight about horsefolk: "We generally try to avoid thinking as much as possible."

Speaking of Christmas, why not give a horse-crazy descendent a chance to go to Christmas horse camp? Rushwood Riding School has expanded the program from its popular summer camp to be re-enacted the week after Christmas. The five-day program (Dec. 26-30) will offer a variety of mounted activities as well as much chalk talk on how to care for a horse properly and how to gear up for the show ring. The classes are offered for kids from five to whatever age, and will wind up with a horse show on the final day. Call Michelle Rush at 659-3547 for details.

If you don't spent the holidays in the river and aren't of a mind to hang out with horses until 1985, the Valley scene may still lure you, especially on New Year's Eve. Hidden Valley Music Seminars is having a gala New Year's Eve bash, complete with buffet, wine, and a George Gershwin/Cole Porter revue, entitled "Fascinatin' Rhythm."

The singers and dancers — other than those who spontaneously dance out the old year — are the very same you will be able to see during the opera season which begins Jan. 18. The event is a fund-raiser for the opera which has been so popular in years past. So cancel your plans for Marrakesh and boogie through nostalgia and some of the best music written. Details are as close as your phone, if you dial Hidden Valley at 659-3115.

"MORE FORWARD, follow the horse, stay with him," were exhortations offered by Anne Kursinski to participants in a two-day riding clinic offered last weekend in Carmel Valley.

Owner blocks road

DRIVERS USED to taking a shortcut on a private road in the Post Office Subdivision between Carmel Rancho Lane and Clock Tower Place, Carmel Valley, were surprised to see a barricade blocking the way Nov. 30. Co-owner John Mockett explained that the barricade was installed "to keep the flow of traffic out on the county roads where it belongs. The traffic was getting to a point where it was ridiculous." A couple of adjacent businessmen have expressed alarm that the barricade was installed without advance warning. Fred Stanley, owner of Stanley's Appliances, said: "It's definitely an inconvenience. I had been hearing rumors but nobody told me they were going to do it." Don Nelson, vice president of Monterey County Bank, added: "I just found out about it this morning (Nov. 30). It could cause some problems for all of us. It's just going to really upset the traffic flow out here. (Michael Gardner photo.)

County planners will take tour of CV Ranch

THERE WILL be nine previously unexpected visitors to Carmel Valley Ranch within the next couple of weeks and they won't be looking to buy one of the new residential units proposed for Oak Place.

The contingent will be members of the Monterey County Planning Commission, who have enough concerns about the fourth and final phase of residential development at Carmel Valley Ranch to want a personal tour.

After members visit the ranch, the planning commission will readress the development at its Jan. 9 session in Salinas.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors had scheduled a Dec. 18 hearing in the belief that the planning commission would complete its study Dec. 12.

That hearing before supervisors had to be postponed because planning commissioners are unconvinced the project as proposed should be approved.

The delay means that Supervisors Michal Moore and William Peters — generally considered to be pro-development — will no longer be on the board when the ranch project is presented to supervisors.

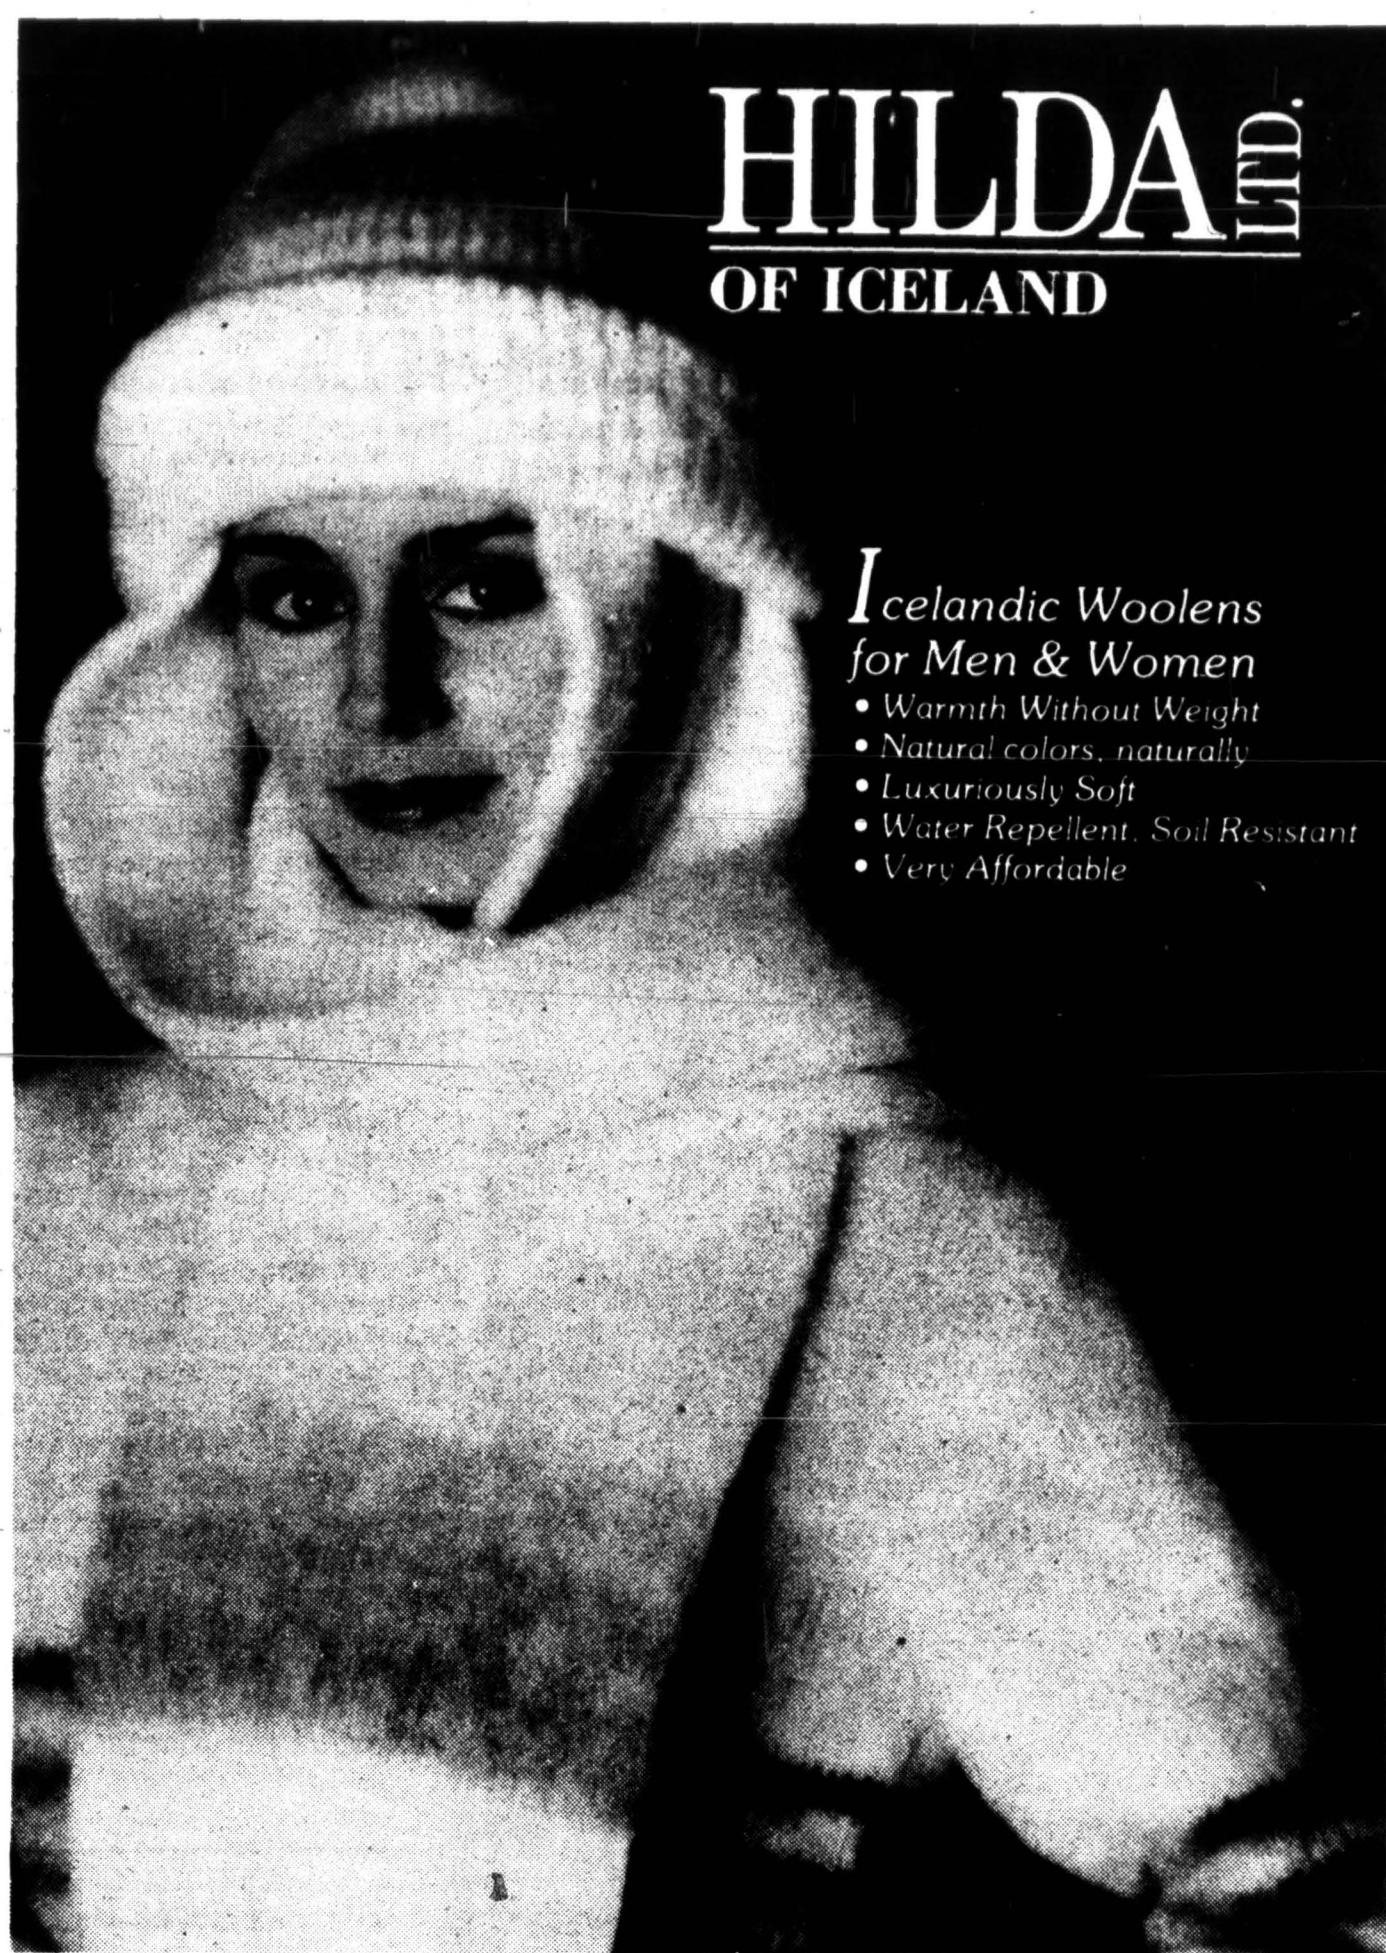

Instead, Carmel Valley Ranch will have to contend with new Supervisors Karin Strasser Kauffman and Sam Karas, both of whom are believed to be more conservation-minded.

Landmark Land Development Co., the parent company for Carmel Valley Ranch, wants to build 132 units on 75 acres in the hills overlooking the ranch off Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1.

The company proposes to develop several two-story, two and three bedroom models in sizes ranging from 2,560 sq. ft. to 2,800 sq. ft.

The company anticipates a $125 to $200 per square foot selling price. That means the smaller two-bedroom unit would cost at least $320,000 at $125 per square foot.

Access will be provided through a series of roadways off the main entrance on Robinson Canyon Road.

VNA assists Carmelites

AT AGE 93, Carmelite George F. White likes to joke about the bowel surgery he had three years ago. "Now I only have a semicolon," he tells his friends. When he developed back pain in October, White and his wife Carolyn called on the Visiting Nurse Association.

They know the non-profit home health agency well. The Whites' daughter, Marian Messier, founded the VNA on the peninsula 34 years ago and still serves on its board of directors.

Beginning last October, the Whites were visited regularly by a team of health professionals who at one point cared for them both.

CARMEL couple, Mr. and Mrs. George White, have benefited from the services of the Visiting Nurse Association through physical therapy and nursing. (Steve Gann photo).

Physical therapist Gail Short taught White strengthening exercises and made a simple and ingenious modification to the walker he uses to get around. She reasoned that White's back pain might be relieved if he could push the walker instead of having to lift it each time he takes a step, so she put wheels on the walker's two front legs. Mr. and Mrs. White said this combination of therapy and mechanical ingenuity worked well.

In addition to physical therapy, White was visited regularly by nurse Bill Lensing, who checked his progress and monitored his vital signs and medications. A home health aide and a homemaker completed the team.

While all were actively engaged in White's care, Mrs. White became ill with an inner ear imbalance which required two days of hospitalization and then a period of convalescence at home. During that time, the same VNA staff cared for them both. All staff, say the Whites, were "compassionate, efficient, friendly and quick."

The team approach to patient care makes it possible for the VNA to coordinate a range of health care services that includes speech therapy, occupational therapy, help from a medical social worker and specialties such as i.v. therapy, blood drawing and respiratory therapy.

As an alternative to prolonged hospitalization or a stay in a convalescent hospital, home care is becoming more popular as Medicare and private insurance limit their coverage, according to Judith Hermann, executive director. The community-based VNA provides a sliding fee scale, based on ability to pay. "Our goal is to provide care to anyone who needs it," she said.

The Whites are still visited twice weekly by a VNA homemaker, a certified nurse's aide who helps White bathe and with other personal care. Mrs. White takes advantage of her visits to go out to shop. Peninsula residents since 1950, the Whites have lived in their Carmel home for 28 years.

For further information about the Visiting Nurse Association, residents of the peninsula are invited to call 375-9537.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS SOUGHT

New West Dialysis Clinic in Carmel treats people who are seriously ill with kidney disease. The staff is planning a Christmas party for the patients Dec. 20 at the Moose Lodge, 555 Canyon Del Rey, in Del Rey Oaks. The clinic needs someone to be a Santa Claus, and donations of such items as decorations, foods, gifts for the patients, and money.

Those who wish to help may call Marjorie Atkinson, social worker; or Christine d'Ombrian, head nurse, at 624-1204.

Morley Baer honored

Party for supervisors

OUTGOING Monterey County Supervisors Michal Moore of Del Rey Oaks (second from right) and William Peters of Carmel Valley (right) were guests of Supervisor Mac Del Piero of Castroville (left) and Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas at a reception Thursday, Dec. 13 at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Both Moore and Peters will leave office this month, since neither sought re-election in November. (Susan Bock photo).

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINNER/DANCE

The Board of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce has scheduled its annual dinner/dance for Saturday, Jan. 12 at the San Carlos Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton.

Cocktails are at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:45 p.m. The evening will include bestowal of the Robert Littlefield Award, installation of officers for the new year, and presentation of the Outstanding Citizen Award.

The Mike Marotta orchestra will provide music for dancing.

SCOUTS SPREAD CHRISTMAS CHEER

Fourteen Girl Scouts and Cub Scouts, who also attend Carmel River School, brought Christmas cheer to a needy Seaside family Dec. 13.

The group collected presents and food, including a turkey, for the family. The project was undertaken in conjunction with the "Adopt A Family" program through the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Leaders of the Girl Scout Troop 2035 are Phyllis Lewis and JoAnn LePage. Leaders of Cub Scout Den 2 Pack 48 are Teri Stott and Holly Wilson.

Girl Scouts involved in the program are Susan Burt, Alexandria Lewis, Julie Korper, Peyton Lewis, Melissa Hill, Nicole LePage and Desiree Castro.

Boy Scouts who helped are Bryan Beckman, Alex Stott, Mark Brophy, Carl Dauphine, Jeff McGowan, Gannon Ogden and Andrew Wilson.

FASCHINGSBALL JAN. 26 IN VALLEY

On Saturday, Jan. 26 at 8 p.m. the German-American Club will hold its annual Faschingsball (German Mardi Gras) at the Rancho Canada, Carmel Valley, Carmel.

Featured for dancing entertainment are the "Hollanders" from San Jose, playing Faschings music.

Everyone is encouraged to come in costume since prizes will be awarded for best costumes. Food and beverages will be available. The event is open to the public for $7 per person. Tickets may be purchased at Sylvia's Danish Pastry Shop in The Barnyard, The Bavarian Delicatessen in Monterey, the Mecca Delicatessen in Marina, The Del Monte Pastry Shop in Del Monte Shopping Center and at the door the evening of the festival.

The German-American Club is a non-profit organization. Proceeds from this annual event will be programmed for a donation to the Children's Services Center of Monterey County and the Monterey County SPCA.

Promotions, purchases, sales

MARK VERBONICH and Del Goehring of the Pebble Beach Co. have been promoted to two newly-created vice presidential positions. Verbonich was named vice president of property services and Goehring was named vice president of resort operations.

Verbonich, who has been with the Pebble Beach Company since 1975, was manager of property services before his promotion. Goehring served as controller of the real estate division since 1983. He had previously held the post from 1974 to 1977.

As vice president of property services, Verbonich is in charge of the Pebble Beach Co. security department and forestry and road maintenance services for the 5,300-acre forest. He also heads the planning and development department, which includes the architectural control board, and is in charge of the leases for the 20 Pebble Beach shops, the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center, and the company ground leases.

Goehring's new position puts him in charge of operations for the Pebble Beach Lodge which includes the golf department, Beach Club, retail outlets and the company's wholly owned subsidiary, Del Monte Realty Co.

The Pebble Beach Co. also promoted Kenneth A. Bartlett to assistant vice president of finance and administrative services.

NEW OWNER OF ALPHABET SOUP

It was a search of two years' duration before Dennis Hutchins located the right business to buy in Carmel. The former postal worker finally found the one he wanted in the Del Dono Court on Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue.

Hutchins purchased Alphabet Soup gift shop from Wendy Phelps, who opened it in 1982. He described the merchandise as "gifts in good taste from A to Z. We have stationery, cards, stuffed animals, some craft items, aprons and baskets."

Hutchins said that for the past "17 years, six months and four days" he had worked for the United States Post Office in many of the peninsula cities.

He chose the shop because he "wanted the location. It has good traffic and good potential. I also wanted a place that would take a minimum of personnel to operate." Hutchins' wife, Carol, works as a cosmetologist in Pacific Grove and will not be able to devote much time to the shop.

Some of the stuffed toy items featured in the shop are Teddy bears for collectors by Cheryl Lindsay, Equestrian Owls from England, costumed teddy bears Rhett Bearlert and Scarlett O'Beara, and a stuffed cloth moose head for those who always wanted that hunting lodge look in their homes but are ecology-minded.

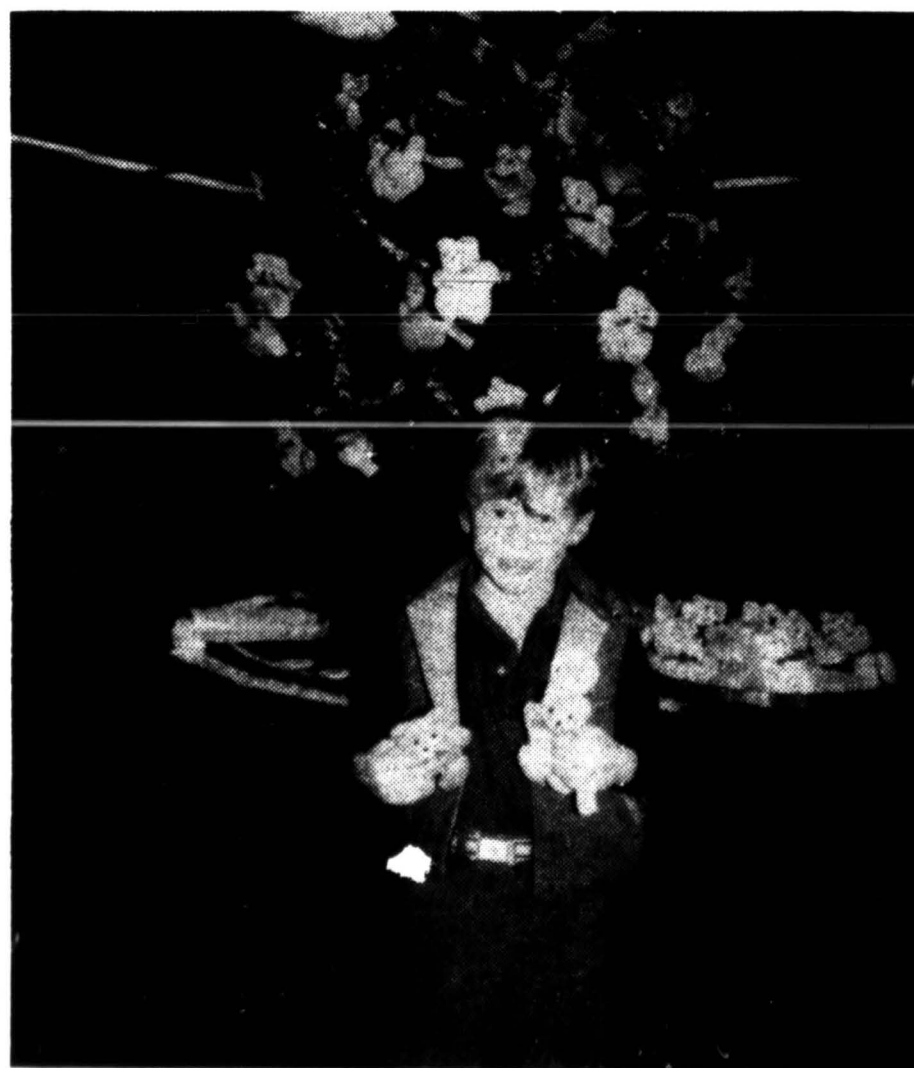

A sampling of other items carried in the shop include porcelain-head clowns, Kenya bags, Beatrix Potter books, Appalachian quilts from Stitches and dozens of different types of rabbits.

Ms. Phelps sold the shop so she might spend more time at home with her children. She has started a distribution company to sell many of the items found in Alphabet Soup throughout California.

LAZERS PURCHASE PRESTIGE PROPERTIES

Wendy and Charles Lazer have become the sole owners of Prestige Properties just as the residential real estate firm is about to celebrate its five-year anniversary.

The Lazers bought out the interest of partner Diane.

Robinson because "Chuck and I have always worked together," Mrs. Lazer said.

"We had a real estate firm in San Jose in the 1960s and moved here in 1970," Mrs. Lazer said. "I opened Prestige Properties with Diane Robinson five years ago when Chuck was involved in other business interests he was not ready to get out of."

The firm has a staff of 22, "counting the office manager, advertising manager, agents and ourselves," Mrs. Lazer said.

The office location of Prestige Properties will stay the same: San Carlos Street near Seventh Avenue. Mrs. Lazer said they will change the entire interior and add a computer system "that does almost everything. Matching a client and a house is just about the simplest of its functions."

In comparing the Monterey Peninsula real estate market with other areas she has worked in, Mrs. Lazer said the biggest difference is that people consciously choose to come here and devote more time trying to find a house that they're happy with.

"They are doing it by choice rather being transferred here by a company. They say things like 'We have been coming here for eight or nine Bach Festivals and we just thought it was time to buy something here.' For many of them it is a second home and they hope to retire here," Mrs. Lazer explained.

Despite country-wide economic problems that have affected the entire real estate industry, Mrs. Lazer said her firm has been busy.

"Prices dropped a little but not drastically and it took a little longer to sell than before. Mrs. Lazer said. "Things seem to be on an upturn now."

Prestige Properties services the entire peninsula but the "bulk of our business is in Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach," Mrs. Lazer said. "We do have some listings in the Carmel Highlands also."

CHEF SHOWS CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Mark Cesario, a chef with the Lodge at Pebble Beach, has decided to show his Christmas spirit by making and selling fudge and New Orleans-style pralines. He will donate the proceeds earned by these holiday sweets to the Salvation Army and Toys for Tots.

The homemade-style candy contains no preservatives and is made from the "best of quality products," according to Cesario. "I have put it in quality food stores."

"The pralines are a rich New Orleans-style recipe that I have tested and tried over and over," he said. "I decided to go with the one I learned as a kid."

"It's high in calories but tasty. It's not a year-round thing but at Christmas it goes well."

"We have made about $600 so far," Cesario said. "My goal is to make $2,000 for the charities. Whatever we don't sell we will give to the food for needy families' programs."

Cesario trained with Chef Paul Prudhomme in New Orleans at K-Paul's Louisiana Kitchen and has worked in the Royal Orleans, Commanders Palace, and Brennan's in New Orleans; Fairmont in New York; Maxwell's Plum in San Francisco; and has worked at The Lodge for the past year.

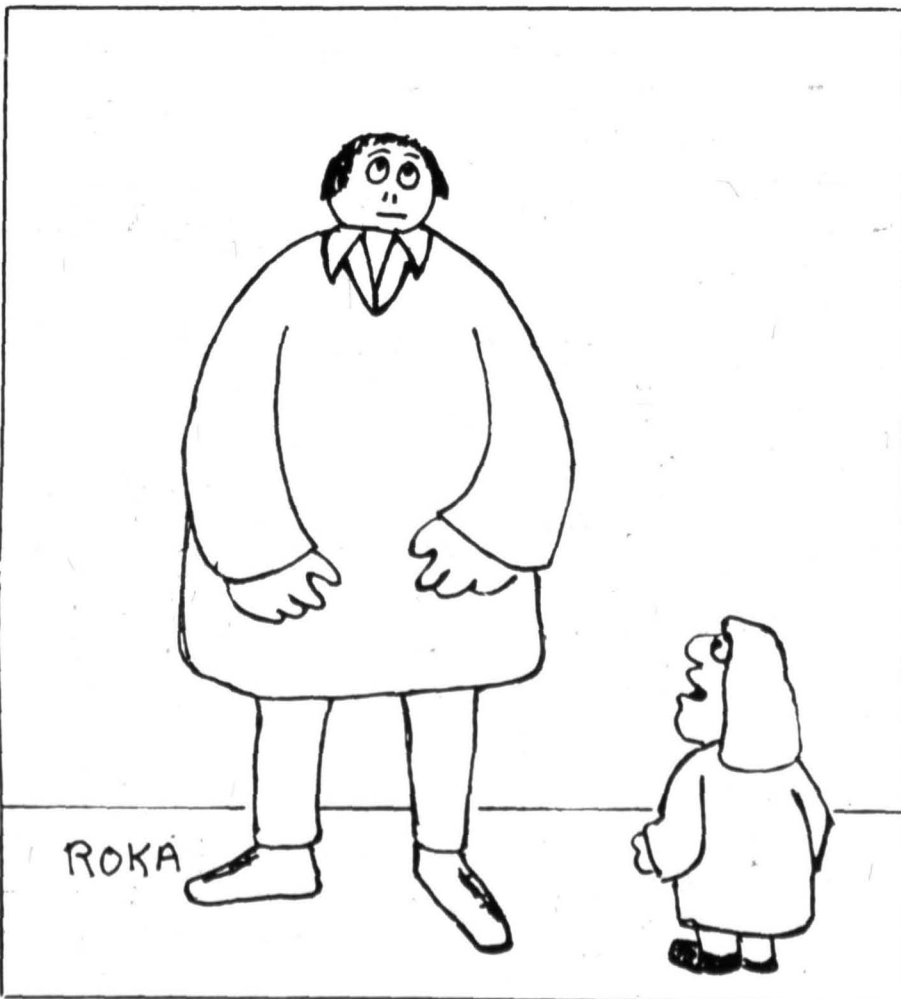

"In general, people go all out for charities. The stores have been very cooperative," said Cesario, who added that he had put the candy into "quality food stores" all over the peninsula.

FOR YOUR CALENDAR

Performers from Briarcliff Academy and carolers in Dickensian costume will welcome visitors to a Christmas celebration presented by The Cobblestone Inn. Innkeeper Joseph Smith invites the public to share in the caroling, refreshments and firelight at 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 22. The Cobblestone Inn is on Junipero between Seventh and Eighth, Carmel. For details, call 625-5222.

OBITUARIES

Victor Hall

Services took place Dec. 10 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Monterey for Victor L. Hall, a Pebble Beach resident for the past 21 years who died Nov. 6 at his home. He was 86.

Born March 1, 1898 in Ogden, Utah, he was a graduate of the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania. He attended the University of Utah until his studies were interrupted by World War I. He then attended officer training school at the Presidio of San Francisco and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

He spent 20 years with a New York City management firm, then took a position with the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, from which he retired in 1963.

He was a life member of the New York Society of Trade Association Executives and a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club. He served as high priest for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Survivors include his wife, Muriel; four sisters, Mrs. Elmer Frame of LaCanada, Mrs. Theron Jones of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Merl D. Kimball and Mrs. Robert Thompson, both of Salt Lake City, Utah; and several nieces and nephews.

Bishop M. Crane Kitchel officiated at the services. Graveside services followed at El Carmelo Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Ruth Hagberg

Private family services took place for Ruth E. Hagberg, a resident of Carmel Valley for 13 years who died Dec. 5 at her home. She was 70.

Born July 17, 1914 in Mount Vernon, N.Y., she moved to this area from Beverly Hills upon retirement. She was office manager for her husband, who was a textile manufacturer's representative.

She was a member of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Survivors include her husband, Robert N. of Carmel Valley; a son, Peter of Oakland; a daughter, Sandra of San Jose; a sister, Isabelle Barker of Cornish, N.H., and three grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Virginia Smith

Private cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea for M. Virginia Smith of Carmel, a retired beautician and local resident for 30 years who died Dec. 4 at her home. She was 71.

Born Feb. 15, 1913 in Maryville, Mo., she was a graduate of Northwest Missouri State Teacher's College at Maryville. She worked as a beautician for 47 years — last with Armand's in Carmel — before she retired in 1980.

Survivors include a niece and nephew.

Inurnment took place at Maryville in the family plot. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the American Lung Association, 140 Central Ave., Salinas, Calif. 93091.

Jane Laycox

Funeral services took place Dec. 11 at the Paul Mortuary for Jane Amason Laycox, a longtime sculptor in Carmel who died Dec. 6 at her home.

Born in Albertville, Ala., she moved to Carmel from Walnut Creek 20 years ago. Her interest in sculpture and art began in New York City, where she worked with her brother James Pennald Build. She studied at the American University at San Miguel Allende in Mexico and at the New York Art Students' League, under Francisco Zuniega.

She specialized in bronze, and her work was featured many years in galleries, including the Carmel Art Association and the gallery in Carmel owned by Mrs. Laycox and her husband Jack, a watercolorist.

She was active in local art circles and taught sculpture and mold techniques at Sunset Center.

Burial took place at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

She is survived by her husband. He suggests memorial contributions to the Sunset Center studio.

Marie Wilson

A memorial service took place Dec. 9 at the Carmel Foundation for Marie Helen Wilson of Carmel, a retired teacher and former fabric shop owner who died Dec. 7 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 66.

Born April 29, 1918 in Fredericksburg, Va., she moved here from Santa Cruz in 1968. Until her retirement, she was a sewing teacher in the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District adult education program. She owned a fabric shop in Carmel called Carmel Knit Fabrics.

She was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include her daughters, Denise and Tina Borsella, both of Carmel; sisters Nell Garner of Santa Cruz and Ada Thorpe of Virginia, and a brother, Lucian Copen, also of Virginia.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, with inurnment in the El Carmelo Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Carmel Foundation or the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Harry L. Stone

Memorial services took place Dec. 15 at Christ Episcopal Church in Winnetka, Ill., for Harry L. Stone, a Carmel resident for 12 years who died Dec. 12 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. He was 78.

Born Oct. 28, 1906 in Chicago, Ill., he graduated from Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H. in 1928 and retired as an assistant treasurer of International Harvester after 25 years of service.

He was a member of the Christ Episcopal Church in Winnetka and was past president of the Executive Club of Chicago.

Survivors include his wife, Margaret; two daughters, Leslie Douglas of Chicago and Martha Harley of Boston, Mass.; and a son, Judson of Northfield, Ill.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula or to a charity of the donor's choice.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"Life after 60 is not a period inexorably marked with massive physical deterioration." Quite the contrary, according to Dr. Laurence G. Branch and Dr. Alan M. Jette of Massachusetts, who led the Framingham Heart Study.

The doctors found that, among people aged 75 to 84, 77 percent were able to walk a half mile or more with no difficulty; 85 percent could climb stairs; 50 percent were able to perform heavy housework; and 90 percent were "fully independent" in performing the activities of daily life — grooming, eating, moving about the house and getting dressed.

 The key to longevity, according to Dr. Walter Bortz of Stanford University, is a positive attitude toward aging throughout life. "If people looked forward to growing old, they'd take care of themselves," he said. "They'd give up smoking and they'd exercise and lose weight."

 Remember when? February 7, 1943 — Shoe rationing began. A limit was set of three pairs per year for each civilian.

SERRA BICENTENNIAL BY MSGR. FRANCES WEBER

Case for the friars

By THE TIME Fray Junipero Serra left San Diego, it had become evident in California, Mexico and even in Spain itself that the strained relations between the military and religious in that faraway province had resulted in an embarrassing and dangerous impasse.

Governor Pedro Fages was young, gruff, rigid and new to America. He was inexperienced in governing a mission territory. Zealous in the service of the king and in upholding the dignity of the military profession, he was a disciplinarian whose methods, instead of improving his men, often made them worse.

For his part, Serra was zealous, dynamic and seasoned in mission experience. Position and preferment he voluntarily cast aside. A naturally impatient man, the presidente was frustrated by imperfect conditions.

Serra felt that conversions would not be unnecessarily delayed if the agencies of conquest were really interested in souls. Optimistic, courageous and willing to take chances, Serra had great faith in the providence of God. Delays, vexations and disappointments weighed heavily on him.

Some of the soldiers were lazy, inept, disorderly and scandalous. The lack of food supplies, sufficient mules and personnel, and of Christianized Indians as helpers prevented a more rapid development of the missions.

While Galvez had determined the salient features of the conquest and its manner of operation, too much was left to individual caprice, especially with the rapid change of personnel in high places.

Antonio Maria Bucareli recognized the problems in California and on March 18, 1772, he suggested to Fages that he "preserve harmony with the missionary fathers and let them freely perform their apostolic work, assisting them with all means possible so that they may attain, as soon as possible, the reduction of those to whom they desire to preach."

Disharmony between the agencies of conquest was apparent at all levels of the governmental hierarchy. And, at that psychological moment, Serra decided that the atmosphere could be cleared only by a personal conference. This turned the tide.

The core of the entire California enterprise was the establishment of missions for the conversion and civilization of the Indians, even though a political consideration had been the occasion of effecting the conquest.

The Christianization process was to be implemented by tried missionary methods; the friars became the principal agents of the peaceful conquest. Their rule over the Indians was to be complete, except in certain criminal matters.

"What soldiers are closer to the arrows than we?" Serra wrote in 1773. The development of the soil, the furtherance of animal husbandry, the teaching of the trades, the development of the arts, the introduction of European social and domestic habits, the gradual formation of towns, the propagation of religion and morality — all of this was the work of the missionary. For these ends, the government provided wide jurisdiction and often generous help, for his labors were recognized as a benefit to the state as well as to the Church.

Middle school teachers teach less, but paid the same as last year

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL MIDDLE School instructors — thanks to shorter classes under the seven-period day program — actually will teach 18 days less this school year.

And despite spending less time in the classroom, teachers are being paid the same amount as 1983-84.

The question of teacher instructional time and accompanying salary costs was briefly addressed by former board members Barbara Sanford and Betty Bell during the Dec. 10 school board meeting.

Trustees continued their review of the seven-period day until January. Another major agenda item — elimination of the split reading program — also was continued until the first of the year.

Under the seven-period day program instituted this fall, middle school instructors teach five 47-minute periods per day as compared to five 55-minute classes in 1983-84.

The time difference works out to a net loss of actual teaching time of about 18 days per year if the average instruction day is figured at about 6.5 hours (7:55 a.m. until 2:29 p.m.).

The figure also is based on 175 teaching days. The adopted school calendar for 1984-85 requires that teachers spend 178 days in the classroom this year compared to 175 last school year.

However, those extra teaching days must be negotiated with the Association of Carmel Teachers. Contract talks have broken down and a mediator from the state Public Employee Relations Board will try to settle the dispute.

Teachers have rejected a 1 percent pay hike offered by the board.

The average teacher salary at Carmel Middle School is $26,542. By teaching 18 days less this year, the average teacher actually is earning $2,736 for time spent not teaching.

That figure is obtained by figuring the average teacher pay per day ($152) based on a 175-day calendar and multiplying that salary by the 18 "lost" days.

The total cost to the district this year will be $62,928 when the $2,736 per instructor is multiplied by the approximately 23 full-time teaching positions at the middle school.

It should be noted that the figures are based on actual teaching time. The instructors are still on campus the same number of hours as last year. They teach the same number of periods and arrive earlier and leave later than the students, which makes their teaching day longer than 6.5 hours.

And Middle School teachers for the past several years have spent more teaching time in the classroom than their counterparts at the high school or elementary schools.

For example, the average full-time high school teacher last year taught 250 minutes per day while the middle school instructor spent 275 minutes in the classroom daily.

USING AN average of 6.5 teaching hours per day, middle school teachers in 1983-84 spent 11 more working days in the classroom than the high school instructors.

"Up to this year our teachers were always teaching more than the elementary and high school teachers," Principal Frank Lynch told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook after the meeting.

Twenty-year veteran teacher Warren Fishburn, who announced an early retirement because of the problems in the district, said teachers wanted to delay implementation of the seven-period day.

"The longer day was arbitrarily set in the summer. There was no input whatsoever

By teaching 18 days less this year, the average teacher actually is earning $2,736 for time spent not teaching.

from the staff," he said. "That's one of the complaints against these three board members."

Board President Susan Bromfield and Trustees Robert Fenton and James Yates are targeted for recall.

The issue before trustees Dec. 10 was how to continue the elementary school split reading program and seven-period day at Carmel Middle School given tight money constraints.

The key issue that surrounds the seven-period day at Carmel Middle School is the cost, which is estimated at about $100,000.

Trustees have been under fire from teachers for funding the extra class instead of using the money for staff pay increases.

But at the session former board member Barbara Sanford presented her own version of the costs that indicates the district actually made money by offering a seven-period day.

Mrs. Sanford said the additional income from extra students who enrolled in the middle school because of the seven-period day offset the costs of adding more teachers.

Mrs. Sanford claims the 25 new students who enrolled in the middle school brought with them $59,350 in state income. The state pays the district about $2,350 for each student enrolled.

The district spent an extra $80,192 to hire

ANNOUNCING WHAT EVERYBODY'S BEEN STRUGGLING FOR:

POWER & MONEY

In your endless quest for more power and money, perhaps you're overlooking the obvious.

Your own wind turbine could be an inexhaustible source of electric power and income for years to come.

And as if that weren't enough, consider these special advantages:

- ▲ 1984 6 to 1 write off: 3 to 1 tax savings projected on a typical purchase.
- ▲ Arbutus will assist qualified purchasers in obtaining financing from participating banks and financial institutions.
- ▲ 50% of purchase price in tax credits, plus depreciation.

- ▲ 30-year Southern California Edison contract equals long-term income tied to the price of energy.

- ▲ 5-year turbine warranty available from manufacturer—90% guaranteed income for 5 years.

This advertisement shall not constitute an offer to sell or a solicitation to buy Wind Turbines in any state in which such offer or solicitation would be unlawful prior to registration or qualification under applicable state securities laws. several extra teachers who equaled 3.3 full-time positions, she added.

However, the one full-time instructor in language arts who cost $22,192 would have been needed to offer that program and balance class sizes even without the seven-period day, Mrs. Sanford said.

She subtracted that cost from the $80,192 and came up with $52,958 as a total cost for new teachers needed for the extra classes.

SINCE THE additional students netted the district $59,350, the seven-period day actually generated $6,392 for the district, Mrs. Sanford reasons.

Interim Supt. Rich Hawkins and Business Manager Ed Miyasaki are expected to review the figures provided by Mrs. Sanford and include a report for board consideration in January.

Hawkins said he has not had a chance to review the figures. However, he added that there have been misconceptions about the additional state ADA monies because of the complicated system of public school financing.

To protect districts with a declining enrollment, the state had a "gift" provision that allows the schools to obtain ADA monies based on the highest enrollment figures for either 1983-84 or 1984-85, Hawkins said.

Since Carmel anticipated a decline in attendance for 1984-85 the district reported the 1983-84 enrollment, which at the time last summer was thought to be higher than the figures for 1984-85.

However, district officials were surprised by a slight increase in enrollment this fall. But since the 1983-84 attendance figures already had been provided to the state there is little hope that additional monies will be generated by the new students, Hawkins said.

And that is why he has preliminary doubts about Mrs. Sanford's figures since she counted on the ADA monies of 25 new students to prove that the seven-period day is a financial benefit to the district.

Although he could not comment on the accuracy of the dollar amounts, Principal Frank Lynch said he believes some parents of private school students favored the seven-period day enough to enroll their children in the middle school.

This action halted a protracted decline in enrollment, he said.

"I think parents did bring their kids here because they liked what they saw," he said.

However, Lynch added that the increase in tuition at area private schools helped bring some students back to the middle school.

The seven-period day was implemented this fall as a method to provide students with more electives and also have time in their schedules for mandatory academic classes.

The seven-period day plan was the topic of a survey of parents, students and teachers taken this fall, Lynch told the board Dec. 10.

The 20 instructors who responded have "mixed emotions" about the program, said teacher Pat Craige, who presented those results to trustees.

MS. CRAIGE said it is "unfortunate" that the seven-period day was offered at the "expense" of teacher pay raises.

She said teachers feel "pressured" to teach the same amount of subject material in fewer minutes.

"All mourned the loss of basic instructional time," Ms. Craige said.

Ms. Craige said other concerns are large class sizes and teachers who instruct outside their areas of expertise.

Teachers also are concerned they will be perceived as the "heavies" if the district is forced to eliminate the seven-period day, she said.

Ms. Craige also said an optional seven period day would "hopefully offer the best of both worlds."

Parent Margaret Webb told trustees that parents who responded to the survey are overwhelmingly in favor of the seven period day.

Of the 150 parent respondents, 106 called it "a good experience," 28 opposed the program and 16 offered no opinion, she said.

Student body president Trece Binford reported that 292 of the 405 students who responded said they "enjoy" the extra class.

A separate matter before the board was the issue of split reading programs for kindergarten through third grade at Tularcitos and River elementary schools.

Trustees earlier this fall voted to discontinue the split reading program because the needed extra transportation costs too much (about $29,000).

Split reading involves students arriving and leaving at different times so the teachers have fewer children in reading classes.

Many parents and teachers oppose the elimination of split reading.

City hall closes for remodeling

THE DRAFT environmental impact report on the Harrison Memorial Library expansion is not expected to be available for public review until after the first of the year.

And that means the Carmel City Council will wait until then before it comments on the suitability of the expansion.

That decision was reached Dec. 4 in response to Councilwoman Helen Arnold's concerns that an expansion sketch included in a survey of business people is misleading and could unfairly sway public opinion against the estimated $1 million project.

The survey of merchants is part of the EIR preparation process now underway by Earth Science Associates, the city-hired consultants.

The city has plans to expand the library onto Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues. The portion of Lincoln Street would be closed.

As part of the project the city would build a walkway to connect Ocean and Sixth avenues. The walkway size is what concerns Mrs. Arnold.

She is worried about a "misleading" sketch of the project that indicates a narrow 12-foot wide "alley" rather than a walkway.

Mrs. Arnold wants to ensure that business people who answer the EIR survey understand that the walkway actually would be 43 feet wide.

That is why Mrs. Arnold wanted to discuss the EIR and project alternatives during the Dec. 4 council meeting.

But Mrs. Arnold has been advised by city staff that it would be inappropriate for the council to take any action until after the EIR is submitted for public review and comments in early January.

The council also has been advised that a wider walkway plus 13 other expansion alternatives will be reviewed as part of the environmental impact report.

Mrs. Arnold agreed to the delay. And she remains steadfastly supportive of the expansion idea.

"The objections of business people in the area I believe are unfounded. It is people on foot that patronize the stores, not people in cars," she wrote in a Nov. 30 memo to the council.

"If we use the space at Sixth and Lincoln (the corner lots) to create parking and restrooms we needn't be ashamed of, I am convinced it can be a benefit to not only library users, but shoppers as well."

There has been some organized opposition, including a petition drive, against closing Lincoln Street.

Opponents fear the closure and expansion would cause traffic problems, result in lost parking spaces, block views and destroy the character of the original Maybeck-style building.

IN OTHER action Dec. 4, the council:

- Authorized a resolution to be sent to the Public Utilities Commission that takes a stand on two issues.

The resolution urges the PUC to seek legislation that would afford more local involvement in Nuclear Regulatory Commission decisions that affect the state.

And the resolution restates previous council opposition to any proposal by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to pass on to consumers the costs of the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant near San Luis Obispo.

PG&E has asked the commission for a rate increase based on the costs of Diablo Canyon.

- Scheduled a town hall meeting for 4 p.m. Jan. 22 at Carpenter Hall in the Sunset Center complex.

EXOTIC Arabians will grace the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre when the Santa Clara Ballet returns to stage The Nutcracker on Thursday and Friday. A cast of more than 25 dancers will populate the two-hour production.

'The Nutcracker' to be staged this week

THE SANTA Clara Ballet Company will stage Tchaikovsky's The Nutcracker at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Monterey Peninsula College Theatre.

The traditional Christmas story told in dance looks in on a family holiday party as all the children receive gifts. A nutcracker given to the daughter, Clara, turns into a prince who brings the rest of the toys to life amidst dance and music.

The Santa Clara Ballet Company has toured extensively through the western United States and Canada. Now in its 11th season, the troupe has mounted joint productions with the Victoria Symphony, Oregon Shakespearean Festival and the Southern Oregon Dance Association.

A cast of more than 25 artists will be headed by Josefa Villanueva as the Sugar Plum Fairy and Benjamin Reyes as her cavalier.

Reyes, artistic director of the company, has a background which includes guest performances with the San Francisco Ballet, the San Francisco Opera Ballet and Steve Parker Productions.

Associate artistic director Villanueva also has worked with the above companies, including leading roles in productions of Swan Lake, The Nutcracker, Coppelia, Sleeping Beauty, Don Quixote.

Tickets for the ballet are available in advance through MPC Community Services. General admission is $5. Seniors and children under 12 will be admitted for $3. For reservations, call 646-4051.

Hidden Valley readies for 10th anniversary operas

AS 1984 swiftly dwindles to mere memory, the staff of Hidden Valley Music Seminars is already immersed in planning a noteworthy 1985.

Next year marks the 10th anniversary of opera at the Carmel Valley theater, for 22 years a training center for classical musicians, vocalists and technicians. The 1985 opera season opens Friday, Jan. 18 and runs through Feb. 17. During those weeks, music buffs can catch Rossini's comic opera, The Barber of Seville, as well as both opera and play versions of John Steinbeck's Of Mice and Men.

But the public can sample the quality of the voices that will bring to life those works during the New Year's Eve Gala at Hidden Valley. The singers, gleaned from around the nation, will offer partygoers an evening of "Fascinatin' Rhythms," which will feature the music of George Gershwin and Cole Porter.

The gala will include dances choreographed by Clyde Ventura, who previously directed The Fantasticks and Gianni Schicchi for Hidden Valley. Composer-in-residence Steve Tosh serves as music director.

The gala — with dancing, a buffet, favors, wine and champagne — is all designed as a showcase for talents who will be put to more serious use in the coming weeks. Tickets are $100 per couple, of which $60 is tax deductible. Reservations must be made by Friday, Dec. 28.

Regarding the 10th anniversary opera season, Hidden Valley General Director and Founder Peter Meckel is surrounding the cast with leaders familiar to the institute.

"The set designs are really, quite extraordinary and beautiful," he said of The Barber of Seville. "We think it's important that the music and the drama be the focal point of the experience."

Music director and designer is Robert Darling, who directed the first opera program at Hidden Valley a decade ago.

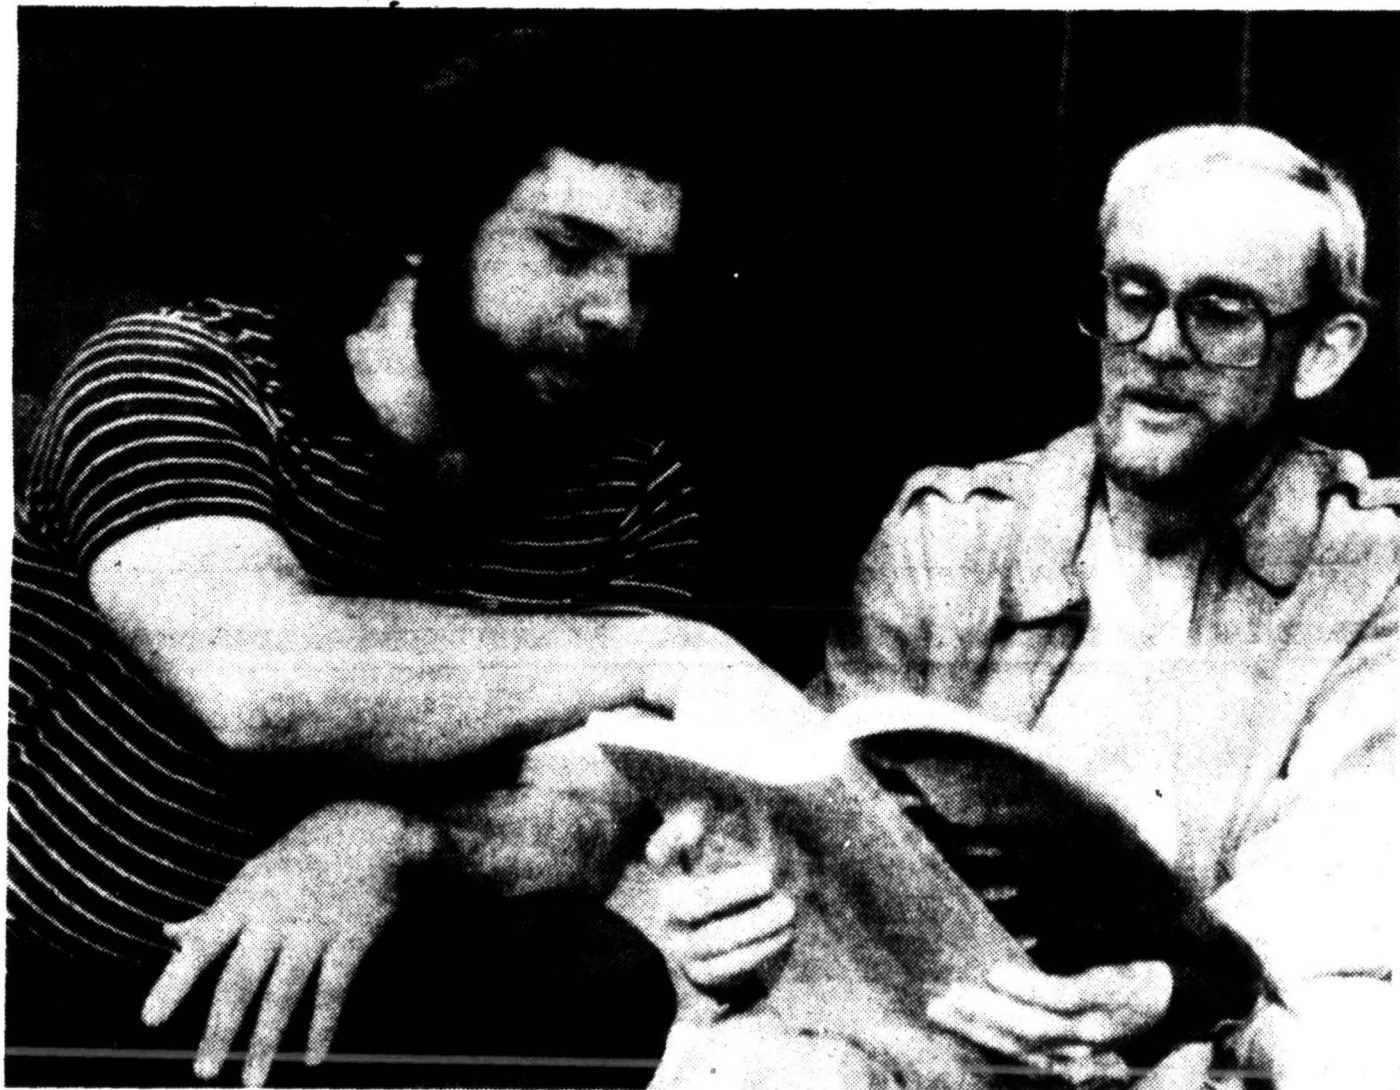

Meckel expressed equal enthusiasm for the twin Of Mice and Men productions.

"I have never heard of anyone who has done the play and the opera of a work in the way in which we're treating Of Mice and

ARTS & LEISURE CLASSIFIED ADS REAL ESTATE

Men. I think it's fascinating to see the juxtaposition of the two and these different perspectives."

Season tickets are now available for this 10th opera season. Price is $37.50 per person for all three productions. A patron's season ticket costs $137.50. All performances will be staged in the Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley Road and Ford Road, Carmel Valley. To receive a season ticket brochure, call 659-3115.

REG HUSTON (left), Director of Vocal Programs at Hidden Valley, confers with Fred Weiss of the State University of New York, Binghamton. Weiss will direct Hidden Valley

Opera Ensemble's production of The Barber of Seville. Huston will appear as Dr. Bartolo in this comic opera.

Restaurants prepare Christmas feasts

CHRISTMAS dinner means more than a dish of sugarplums at the following Monterey Peninsula restaurants. Each will serve its own interpretation of the ultimate holiday feast.

Big Sur

In view of the sea 12 miles south of Carmel on Highway 1, the regular menu will be served at Rocky Point. Select from beef and seafood steaks or other specialties from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Christmas Day. Reservations: 624-2933.

Big Sur novel republished

THE LATE Lillian Bos Ross, shown typing a manuscript in her Big Sur home, wrote The Stranger, a novel about life in Big Sur in the late 1800s. The 1942 book is to be republished next month by Capra Press of Santa Barbara and Gary Koeppel, owner of the Coast

Gallery. A pre-publication reception that will also honor sculptor Harrydick Ross is planned from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 22 at the Coast Gallery, Highway 1 in Big Sur. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

Big Apple cultural excursion set

Monterey Peninsula College Community Services will offer a spring travel-study tour of New York City which will emphasize the cultural aspects of the "Big Apple."

The tour, which will be led by Heinz Hubler, director of Community Services at MPC, will feature eight days and nights in New York from March 26 to April 3.

Tour participants will enjoy four major Broadway and off-Broadway productions, attend George Gershwin's Porgy and Bess at the Metropolitan Opera House, go on a special guided tour through the Metropolitan Museum of Art and take two sightseeing tours of the city itself. The city tour will include the Empire State Building, Times Square, the Broadway theater district, the Statue of Liberty and more.

Cost of the tour is $945, which includes round-trip air transportation, accommodations, and tickets to shows and tours. For more information, contact MPC Community Services, 646-4051.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

BY JANE WILGRESS

Houston memorial planned

ON SATURDAY, Dec. 22, Father Charlie Moore will lead a gathering in memory of Geraldine Houston who died Aug. 1. This memorial will be in Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth Avenue, in Carmel, starting at 3 p.m., and all are welcome to attend.

Gerry Houston was on the Cherry board from July of 1981 and president from September of 1982 until her death. She brought to this small, offbeat organization a wealth of experience and goodwill, and from these qualities the Cherry Foundation has received lasting enrichment.

I think and hope that during the time when Mrs. Houston shouldered responsibilities here she also found things to enjoy in the foundation's smallness, informality and focus on serving the arts. Her sense of comedy was unfailing, as was her willingness to serve others.

Cherry Foundation was indeed fortunate to have had the attention of such a gifted human being, and one with such far-ranging interests. Mrs. Houston was active in the League of Women Voters, the Monterey County Manpower Commission and the Juvenile Justice Commission. She also served on the boards of the United Nations Association, UNICEF, the World Affairs Council, Amnesty International, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Democratic Women's club and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

All friends of the Houstons, of Father Charlie and of the Cherry Foundation will be welcome Saturday. For directions as to location or for any further information, please call 624-7491.

Animated classic returns

PINOCCHIO, the story of the wooden puppet who wanted to be a real boy, opens Friday, Dec. 21 at the Dream Theatre in Monterey. The Technicolor feature was first released in 1941 by the Disney Studios.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

Amadeus: Peter Shaffer's Broadway hit about Mozart gets full, if lumbering, Hollywood treatment. Milos Forman directs. Rated PG. Ends Dec. 20 at the Valley Cinema. 373-4777.

Beverly Hills Cop: Eddie Murphy portrays a Detroit street cop whose investigation of a murder takes him to Beverly Hills. Directed by Martin (Going in Style) Brest. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

City Heat: Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds are adversaries in a mystery set in 1933. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

The Cotton Club: Francis Ford Coppola co-wrote and directed this visit into the dazzling and dangerous world of Harlem's famed Depression-era hotspot. The cast includes Richard Gere, Gregory Hines, Diane Lane and Lonette McKee. Rated R. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Dune: The desert planet Arrakis, known as Dune, is the starting point for an intergalactic holy war set in the year 10,991. Directed by David Lynch, the Dune cast includes Linda Hunt, Jose Ferrer, Max Von Sydow, Sian Phillips, Francesca Annis and rock star Sting. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Falling in Love: Meryl Streep and Robert De Niro, star-crossed commuters, meet and fall hard, despite their respective marriages. Directed by Ulu (True Confessions) Grosbard. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

The Flamingo Kid: Jeffrey (Matt Dillon), a plumber's son, spends his summer before entering college in 1963 amid the glitz and glitter of Long Island's nouveau riches. Also stars Richard Crenna, Hector Elizondo and Jessica Walter. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

The Gods Must Be Crazy: Coke bottle prompts strife among African bushmen when the chief, Xi, decides to run with it to the edge of the earth and throw it away. There he encounters "civilized" characters, and the laughter increases. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Johnny Dangerously: This spoof of gangster movies stars Michael Keaton as Johnny, plus Joe Piscopo, Marilu Henner, Maureen Stapleton, Peter Boyle and Danny DeVito. Amy (Fast Times at Ridgemont High) directs. Rated PG-13. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Koyaanisqatsi: Francis Ford Coppola produced this film that explores modern life "out of balance." Ends Dec. 20 at the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Micki and Maude: Opens this week. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

Pinocchio: The Disney Studios gave this childhood classic extravagant treatment. Pinocchio the wooden puppet and his owner, Gepetto, appear in Technicolor via the multi-plane camera. Rated G. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Protocol: Goldie Hawn plays a cocktail waitress in a seedy

Washington bar who saves a Middle Eastern potentate's life. Political connivers arrange a protocol job for her, and she waves she makes as the agency's chief meeter-greeter wash over the country. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

Runaway: Tom Selleck stars as a cop in pursuit of a madman (Gene Simmons of Kiss) who kills people with high-tech products designed to serve them. With Cynthia Rhodes and Kirstie Alley. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

A Soldier's Story: Based on Charles Fuller's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama, the story follows a black Army officer investigating a murder. Howard E. Rollins Jr. stars. Directed by Norman Jewison. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

Starman: Karen Allen falls for an alien occupying the body of her dead husband. Jeff Bridges. John Carpenter directs. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

The Terminator: Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the Terminator, a cyborg sent from the future to present-day Los Angeles to assassinate a woman whose life is destined to alter the shape of things to come. But a rebel soldier stalks him. Rated R. Ends

Sept. 20 at the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

2010: It's based on the Arthur C. Clarke science fiction novel about an epic space journey made by a team of Soviet and American scientists. Stars include Roy Scheider, John Lithgow, Helen Mirren, Bob Balaban and Keir Dullea. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70. 373-4777.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Characters shine in new musical at Wharf

THE PLOTLINE is silly and the mythology garbled, but With Love, Cupid — a new musical by Barney Hulse and Ellen Saunders at the Wharf Theater — is a fast-paced, entertaining show that fans of musical theater are likely to enjoy.

Offsetting the silliness and garbling are some appealing characters, some good songs well sung, and an energetic, well-rehearsed cast.

The show's premise is slender. A dandified earthbound Cupid (Kelly Alexander) is on the celestial carpet for failing to meet his quota of "affectionated" couples. Although Cupid's arrows still "magnetize" people to each other, their attraction fails to ripen into love.

Worse, the couples fall prey to the resentment and bitterness that accompany their disappointment when their romances do not work out. So not only is Cupid failing to match up the right number of couples, but his mistakes are damaging the very people he tries to help.

The play's action centers around a comedy of errors — Cupid mistakes a secretarial applicant (Gina Welch) for an Olympian trouble-shooter sent to review his bungled work — and around Cupid's efforts to inspire lasting romances. This double plotline is not always well-motivated, but it is diverting.

The same thing is true of some of the musical numbers. Almost all of them are diverting, but some are not well-motivated. Great Place to Live, for example, is an almost operatic treatment of a banal subject — shopping for a rundown apartment. The theme just does not bear the weight of the treatment.

On the other hand, many of the numbers work very well. Production numbers effectively underscore themes explored in the plot. Not for Free dramatizes life without love, and Tears Now conveys the angry disappointment of the hungry heart.

In a uniformly tuneful and able cast, Kelly Alexander's Hermes, Gina Welch's Jennifer, and Bill K. Houle's Sam are polished characters well performed and well sung. Welch is especially appealing as the pouty, shy secretary trying to talk herself into a life without romantic involvement in Night on the Town.

Sandy Williams is a standout in the role of Mae, the bag lady, a winsome trashpicker with a heart of gold. Mae's songs are particularly delightful.

Bottom of the Bag, a celebration of the trash-picking lifestyle, employs delightful, vivid lyrics to make its point. Everybody Out There Needs a Friend, Mae's musical lecture to Cupid, catalogs the virtues of friendship in the colorful imagery of the street. These two are both diverting and well-motivated.

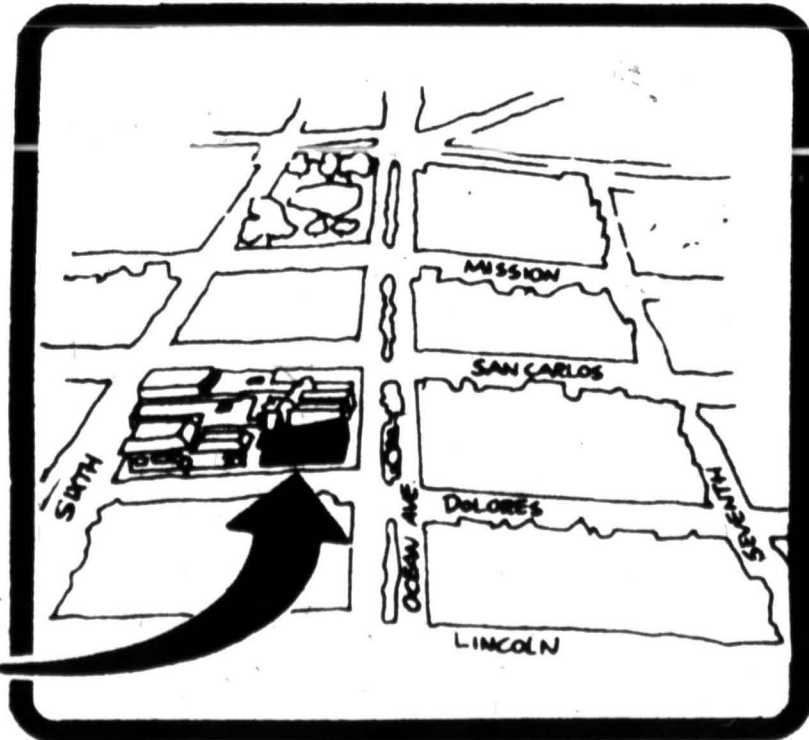

As the Boy and Girl, Doug Phillips and Carrie Howlett's lovely duet is a high spot. The song's title, Learn to Like, does not do justice to either its melody or its lyrics.

Chuck Thurman's bi-level set design, Gwenda Noble's capable choreography, and Barney Hulse's gentle touch at the piano all make solid contributions to With Love, Cupid.

The plot is silly, the action sometimes poorly motivated, and the resolution is simplistic. But a lot of the time, it works. Saturday night's audience left the theater in happy spirits, after a healthy round of applause.

Five promising pros will make their Spalding debuts

Coming off an outstanding year on the PGA Tour, Mark O'Meara heads a field of five promising professionals who will make their debuts in the $200,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am Jan. 3-6 over the Del Monte, Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club and Pebble Beach golf courses.

O'Meara's 1984 season would be a career for many golfers. All he did was finish second to Tom Watson on the money list, with earnings of $437,173, just $9,000 shy of the leader.

In his last 18 starts, O'Meara finished in the top ten 14 times. He not only won the Greater Milwaukee Open, but finished second in the Kemper, Westchester, Hartford, Memphis and LaJet tournaments.

Joining O'Meara among the latest Spalding entrants are four pros who each earned more than $100,000 in 1984. They are: Ronnie Black, the Anheuser-Busch champ who earned $172,000; Mike Donald at $146,000; Buddy Gardner at $118,000 and Joey Sindelar with $116,000.

"It's the infusion of new talent in our field that constantly is upgrading our tournament each year," said tournament founder and director Harold Firstman. "A golfer like Mark O'Meara joining us is an added bonus to our loyal fans."

Already in the field are defending champion Johnny

Miller and former Spalding winners John Mahaffey, the reigning Bob Hope Desert Classic champ, Peter Oosterhuis, Jay Haas, Bobby Clampett, Al Geiberger and Forrest Fezler.

From the LPGA Tour, in the only tournament in the national featuring head-to-head competition between men and women for equal prize money, will be the likes of Kathy Whitworth, Jan Stephenson, Alice Miller, Juli Inkster and Lauri Peterson.

Advance sale tickets to the Spalding, priced at $15 each, are available by calling the Spalding office in Carmel, 624-9402, or writing: Spalding Pro-Am, P.O. Box M, Carmel, Calif. 93921.

Film show to benefit KAZU

"Christmas Film Follies," a benefit for public-supported radio station KAZU, is planned for 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 21 at the P.G. Community Center, 515 Junipero St., Pacific Grove.

Feature film will be The Little Princess, which stars Shirley Temple, Cesar Romero, Richard Greene and Arthur Treacher. The 1939 Technicolor production is a Christmas fantasy set in turn-of-the-century London.

Also to be screened is a selection of holiday-themed short subjects, such as Jack Frost, The Little Tin Soldier and Betty Boop as Snow White. An animated version of The Magic Flute is the French contribution to the show. UNICEF will provide Children of the Sun, an animated story in which the children of the world prove to the adults how easily we can all live together.

A holiday bake sale will accompany the screening. Christmas pies, fruitcakes, cookies, fruit juices, coffee and hot spiced cider will also be served.

A $5 donation is requested of adults, $3 for children under 12. The program benefits listener-supported radio station KAZU, which was knocked off the air by lightning on Nov. 12. The station recently resumed broadcast, and can be heard over 90.3 FM. For more information about KAZU, call 375-7275.

ALLEN FUNT, star of the long-running Candid Camera television show, ran into technical problems filming children at Carmel's River School Friday for a pilot titled Candid Kids.

'Just five minutes' with Allen Funt

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THOUGH THE sun shone outside it was a morning plagued by "poor lighting" as Mr. Candid Camera, area resident Allen Funt, tried to coax gems of wisdom from students at Carmel River School last Friday.

"We've had nothing but technical difficulties today," said the snowy-haired, apparently harried creator of the "capturing people just being themselves" TV format. "I wish I could explain them but I don't understand them myself."

Technicians adjusted lights in the back of Room 10, the River School library, in preparation for a new flock of children who were only told "there's a man who wants to talk to them."

Funt brought his cameras and hidden microphone to River School in preparation for a half-hour television pilot he is shooting for NBC. Titled "Candid Kids," the pilot utilizes the easy-going interview style Funt devised in the '40s.

On the premise that children are inherently wiser than the rest of us, Funt just asks a leading question or two and then lets the kids take over.

"This is our first day of filming a network show. If I talk to enough children I will develop a theme," Funt explained. "There have been scattered references to problems with siblings."

Mr. Candid Camera made use of students from Carmel River School a couple of years ago. Pleased with the results, he decided to start filming in his own "back yard" once again.

His interviews were confined to first, second and third graders selected by their teachers. But lighting problems interfered with the creative process.

"I think what's significant here is there's a special economic and social strata of kids — mostly middle income — that represent a pretty good starting point," he said. "The extremes, the poor and the rich, tend to be more colorful. We try not to seek out precocious kids. But they're very poised, not even overly confident."

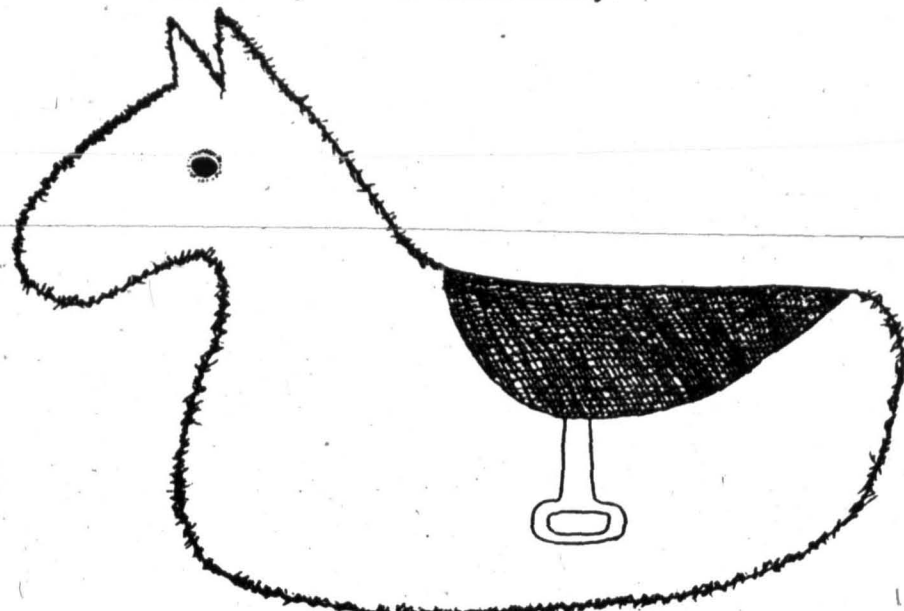

Segments of the embryonic project will also be filmed in New York. Another Funt project, he said, is a feature-length movie that reviews 35 years of Candid Camera mishaps.

Between interviews Friday morning however, Mr. Candid Camera didn't appear to have much to smile about, not even a save-worthy blooper. The Candid Camera lighting wasn't ready to cooperate.

Carmel firefighters continue toy drive

THE CARMEL Fire Department will continue to collect food and toys for needy families on the Monterey Peninsula through Christmas Eve.

The fire department will accept donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the Carmel Fire Department between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily. The Fire Department is on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission.

For more information, call Mitch Kastros at the fire department, 624-1718.

Toy safety urged

Toys may be safer than they used to be, but don't assume all toys are safe, advises a University of California home advisor.

Patricia A. Snow, of the U.C. Agricultural Extension, Salinas, says that despite decreases in recent years, an estimated 123,000 toy-related injuries occurred in 1982. She offers some tips on shopping for safe toys — and keeping them safe.

- Select toys carefully to suit the age, interests and skills of the child. Remember that toys which may be safe for older children can be dangerous to younger ones. For example, the popular space age toys with easily removable parts are fun for a five-year-old but could choke a two-year-old.

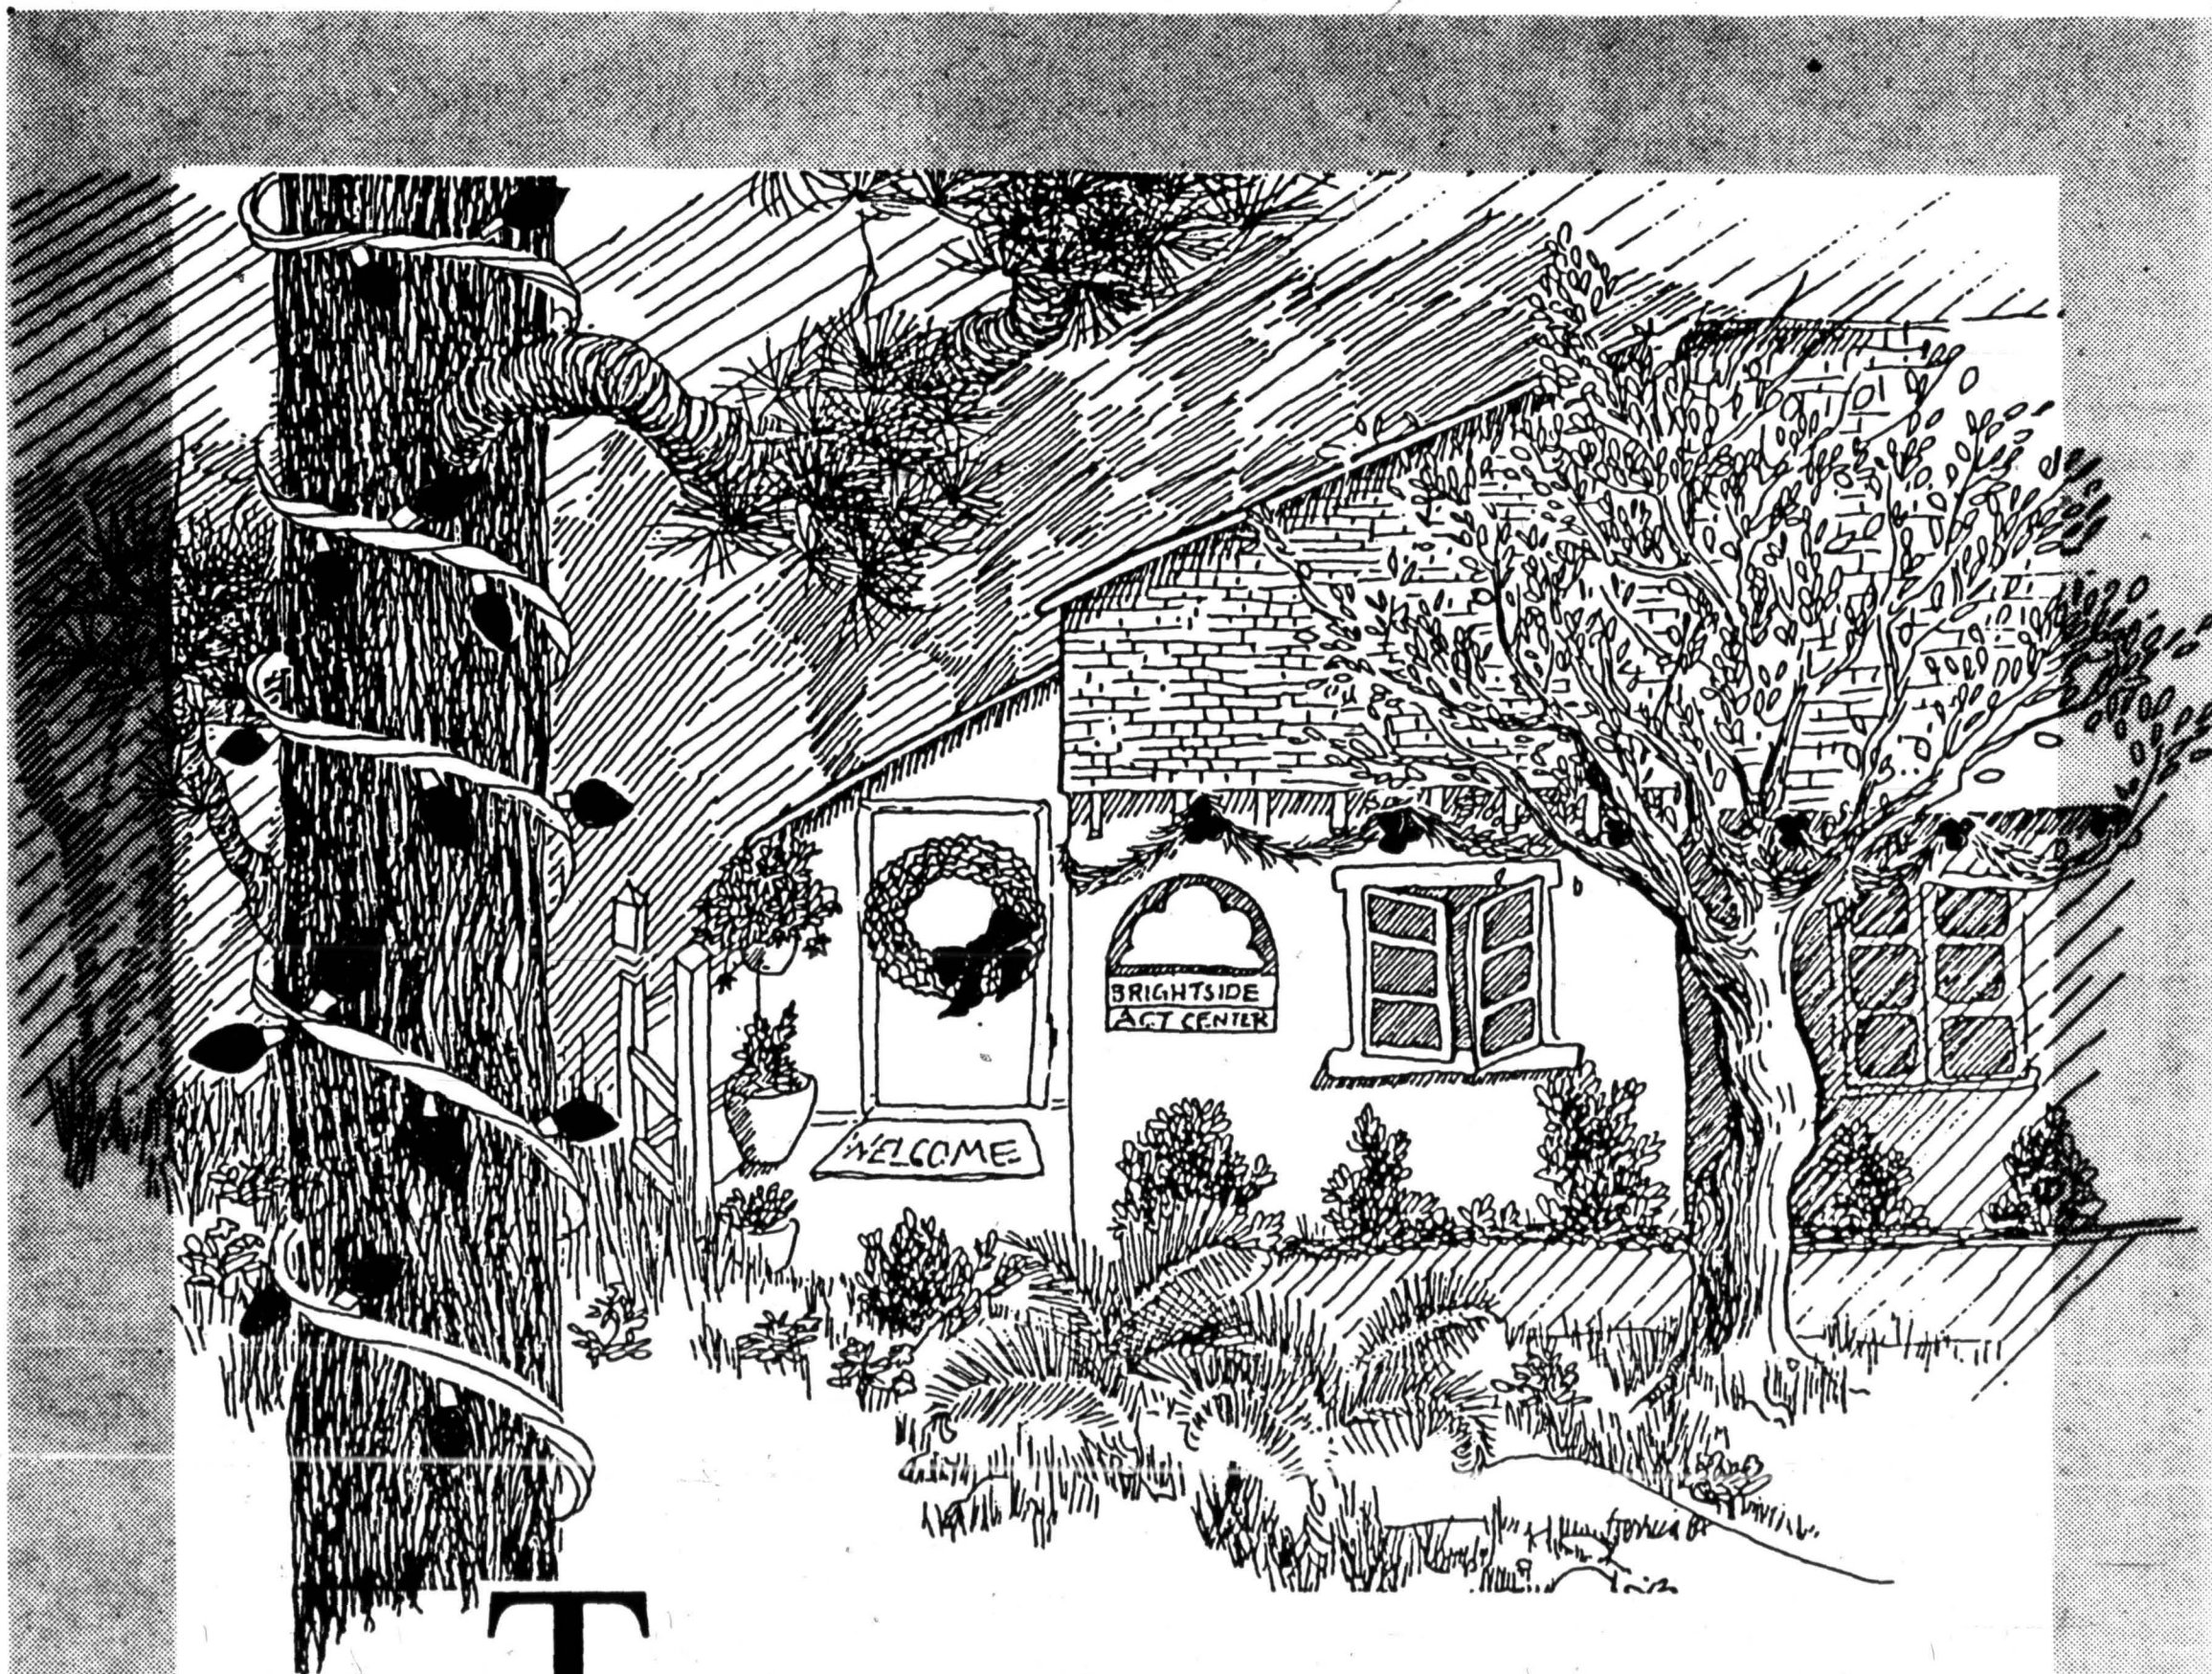

Toys with long strings or cords may be suitable for older children but may harm infants and young children. Do not hang toys with long strings, cords, loops or ribbons in cribs or playpens where children can become entangled. Follow age recommendations on a toy's label.

- Read the toy's instructions and be sure the child understands how the toy is to be used or not used. Add your own guidelines if necessary, such as "never in the house."

- Examine all parts of a toy for safety.

- Consider that children need supervision when playing with certain toys — do not let them play without that direction.

- Encourage children to put their toys away after play, including those which are used outdoors. Rain or dew can rust or damage a variety of toys and toy parts, creating hazards. Keep toys for older children out of the reach of younger ones. Proper storage prevents accidents and helps toys last longer.

ART NOTES

BY SAM COLBURN

Why instant cuteness?

ARCHITECTURE is not the province of the art critics or the artists, but we do have sensitive "eyes" and I wonder why we are not included on local city planning commissions.

One looks at that amazing hulk known as the Royal Sheraton or whatever in Monterey, as well as the expanded Comstockery which replaces Bannerman's Union Oil Station in Carmel and thinks: how can they do this?

Hugh Comstock knew that Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs had no place to live so he created the Tuck Box and Sade's. These are the two artifacts that are the foundation of Carmel's quaintness. What is happening there at Sixth Avenue and San Carlos Street is taking an innocent idea and corrupting it. These new buildings have "pre-sagged beams" among other cutenesses, and the sales people will all be elves and trolls.

WHEN I first met Barclay Ferguson he was living way up Carmel Valley beyond the village (pardon my use of the first person, but it is pretty stuffy of any critic to say "this reviewer.") He was then using crosscut sections of tree trunks as subject matter for his paintings. These works had mystery about them. What were those forms? Were they designs for cities of the future or a kind of new life form?

When he came down to live in Pacific Grove, he switched to painting portraits of the great Victorian buildings of that town. Barclay just set himself up on Lighthouse Avenue with his easel, paints and brushes. He deftly recorded these intricate structures. Ferguson works in acrylic on linen, and I do not know of anyone who is as much a master of that medium as he is.

The next I saw of his painting he had changed directions again and was involved with the sea and sand and whiskey cartons coming in on the breaking surf. This seems the beginning of a surreal period which has continued until the present.

In the beginning, however, the works did not present any mystery. In a succession of panels, Barclay presented an illogical association of subject matter, and the graphic detail was very convincing. But I did not get the feeling of anything beyond that. In his current show at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art there are paintings like "Bad Luck" and "Tin Barber" which are of this period.

Now, however, his paintings have mystery. The forms are fanciful and they contain an illusion of a life beyond reality. One of the first of these canvases is filled with dominoes. They are on a vast desert illuminated by a rising or setting sun. Why are they there — some in long lines, others lying flat, and all casting shadows that add to the strangeness?

I was captivated by "Carmel Beach Head." The idea of toy soldiers swarming ashore to capture those treasured sands and perhaps defeat the tourists is a triumph of fancy. "The Last Postman" concerns a toy in front of the post office at Moss Landing. He is alone but very brave. The building seems to exist as though floating in magic air.

Barclay Ferguson's canvases will be on view in the Frank Work gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art on Pacific Street through Jan. 13, 1985.

JOHN STARK is having a one-man show of watercolors and drawings at Margot's Cafe/Gallery on Forest near Lighthouse in Pacific Grove. These paintings and drawings all show a fine concern for the use of space. The subject matter is composed of seascapes, groups of people and a single portrait. The figures are executed with a combination of ink and watercolor. There is a pleasant balancing of mass and line. He has a very fresh and personal imagery.

THE PACIFIC GROVE Art Center is an institution in which unorthodox works of art may be displayed. At present in the great, main gallery there are constructions by Joanne Crawford and Karen Heisler. The phenomenon upon which these works are based is the fluorescence produced when an electric current is passed through certain gases. Each gas gives off a different color when the juice goes through.

Some of these structures are simply the tubing which contains the gas, and an interesting and glowing line is achieved. Others are a play on commercial advertising such as "Sherwin-Williams Covers the Earth," and another involves the god Mercury and his shoes.

Innovations such as these involve a tremendous amount of work in construction and assemblage — not only for the artists, but also for the craftsmen.

We are fortunate to have the Pacific Grove Art Center. Out of the battle which has recently raged among the members, I think that a growing and constructive force will activate more of the local community.

Carmel Valley couple builds model residence

A MODEL of a Williamsburg house and related buildings constructed by Carmel Valley resident Jack Sassard and his late wife, Jane, can be viewed at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 13.

The buildings, Sassard explained, were begun as an anniversary present for his wife and have not previously been displayed.

"We always thought Williamsburg homes were beautiful. Seven or eight years ago, she wanted a doll house as an anniversary present. We wound up designing a main house," Sassard said. The structure is based on those they had seen during visits to Williamsburg.

"It was primarily my wife's idea," he emphasized.

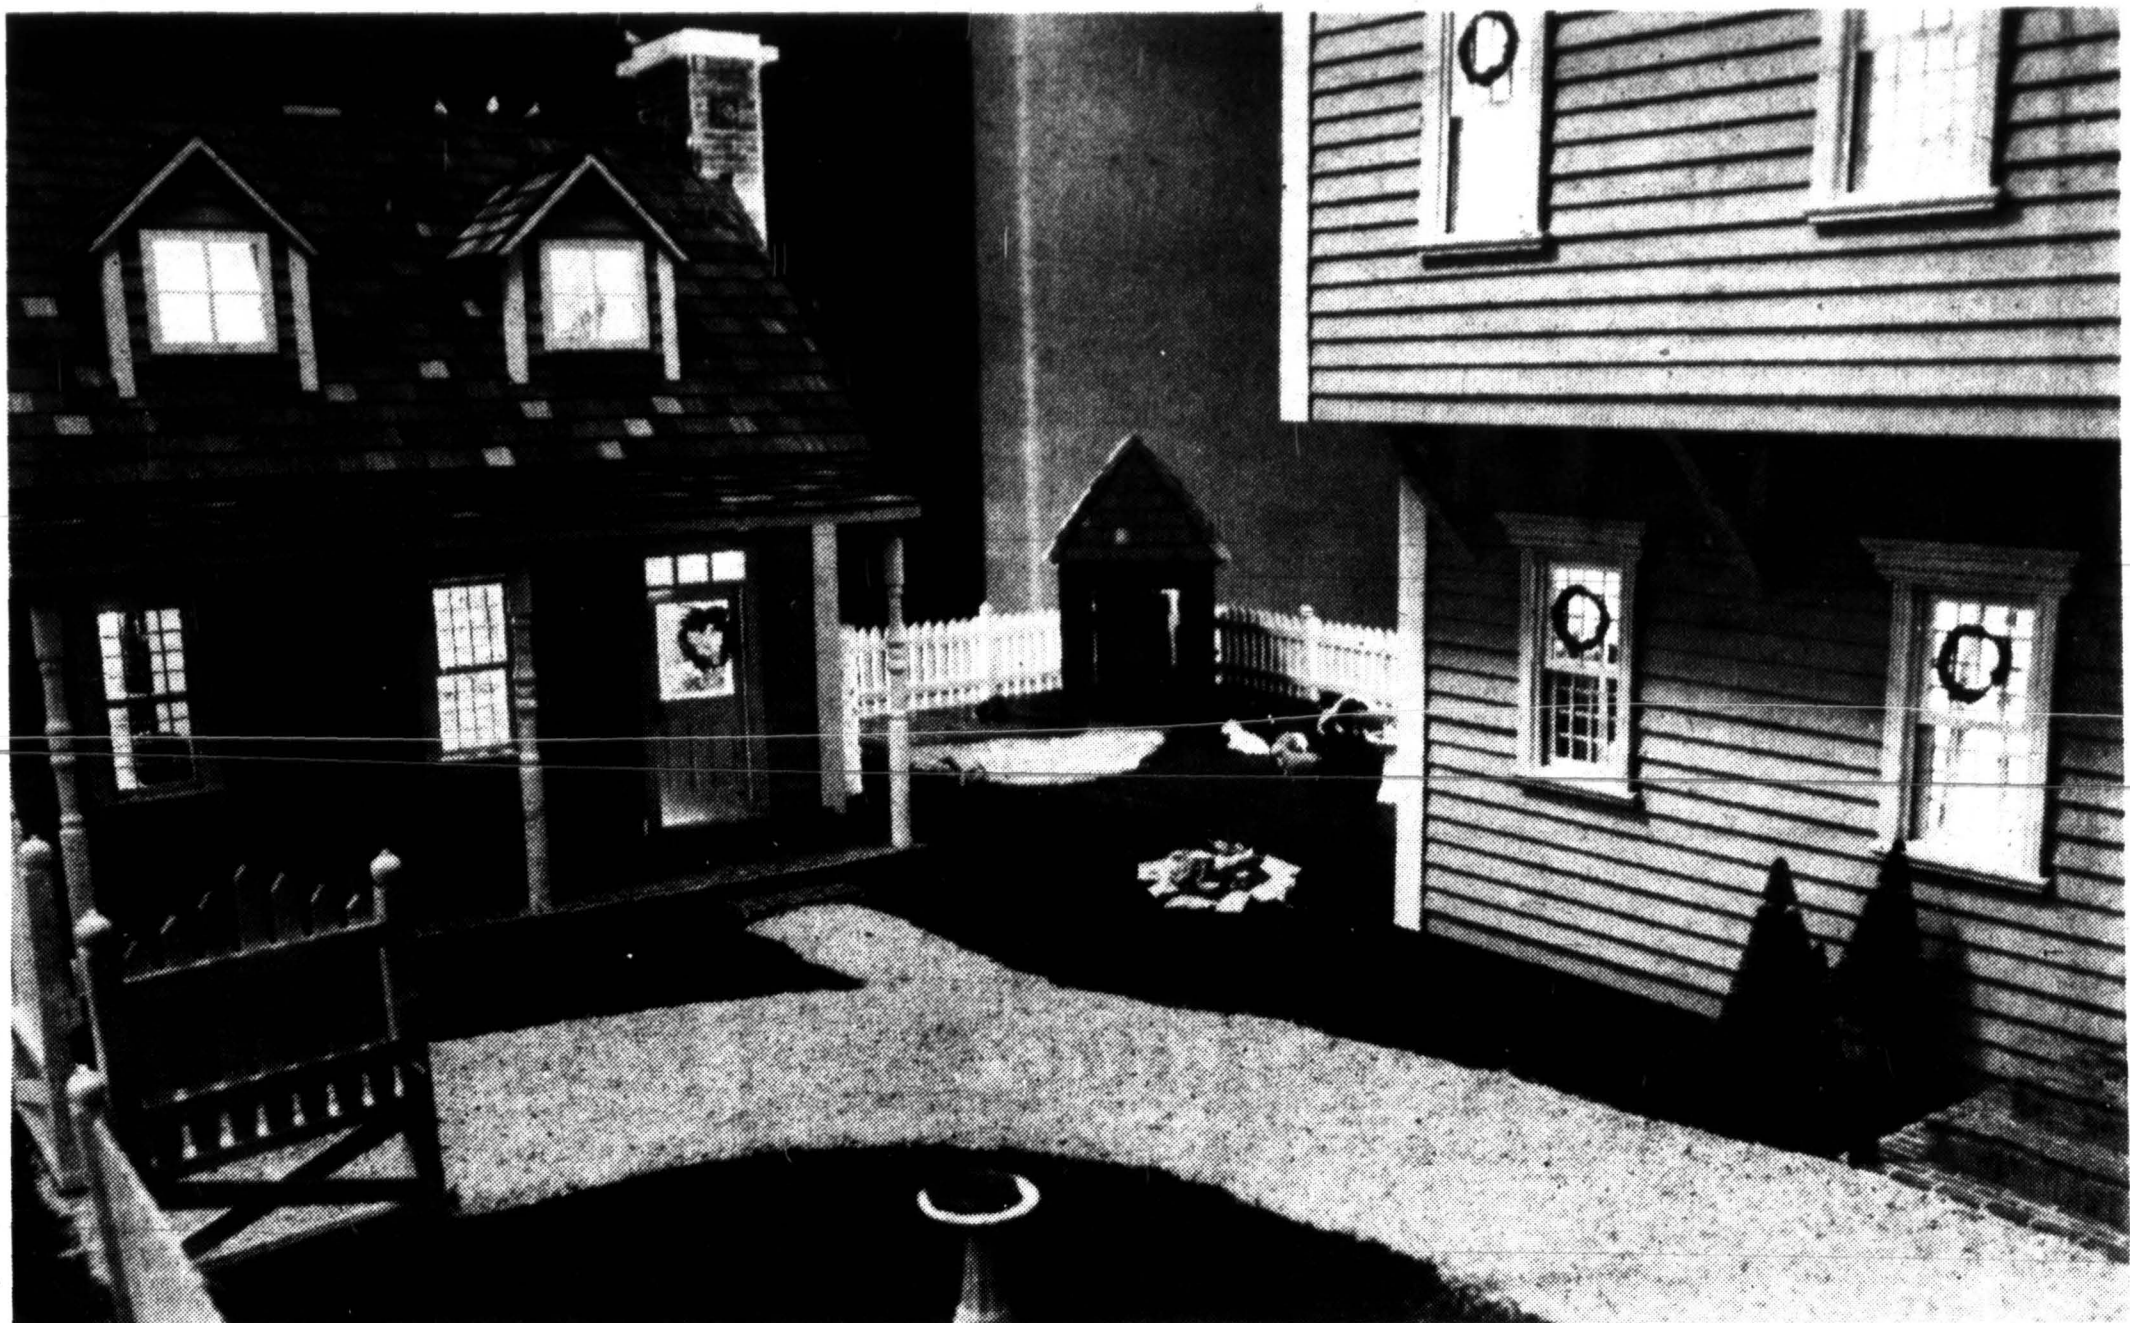

Construction of the exterior of the house began with Fred Davis, owner of The Country Peddler in Salinas, cutting the frame to Sassard's specifications. Sassard then completed the exterior carpentry while his wife completed the interiors. Those interiors include miniature replicas of the objects which would have been found in a traditional Williamsburg home.

"As nearly as I can tell you, everything is authentic design," Sassard said. "There's no plastic in there except for the two horses in the barn."

Mrs. Sassard's work on the interior included making seat covers for the chairs, preparing drapes, and completing a "petit point stitch" carpet with approximately 600 stitches to the square inch.

"She had to work through a magnifying glass," he recalled.

Work on the initial miniature, which continued for approximately a year, continued as a master bedroom in the Sassards' home was converted to a studio. Additions to the model included a kitchen and slave quarters, and the current display includes a coach house and stables.

CARMEL VALLEY resident Jack Sassard and his late wife, Jane, constructed this model of a Williamsburg house and related buildings. The model can be seen at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through Jan. 13. Admission is free.

Jane Sassard, as she worked on the interiors of the miniatures, was an active member of the Carmel Valley "Miniature Exchange," and four members of that group — Sally Brandt, Ermine Gravelle, Berry Herman, and Sue McFadden — helped Jack Sassard set up the current display in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

The display, which was donated to the museum by Sassard, can be seen at the museum, 559 Pacific St. in Monterey, Tuesdays through Saturdays. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. The museum is closed Mondays and holidays.

Third Annual Northern California Photographic Exhibition

Copies of the prospectus for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Third Annual Northern California Juried Photographic Exhibition are currently available through the museum, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Prizes totaling $2,400 and an opportunity for a solo exhibition of work in the museum are among the prizes to be awarded in conjunction with the exhibition.

San Francisco Art Institute Photography Instructor Pirkle Jones, a former assistant to Ansel Adams and an instructor for more than 30 years, has agreed to judge the photographs. His choices will be exhibited in the museum from January 19 through March 10, and the winner of the Best of Show award will, in addition to the $500 purchase prize, be scheduled for a solo show.

Entries will be considered within professional or amateur divisions; each division includes categories for black and white photography, color photography or alternate process photography.

Professionals and amateurs interested in entering the competitive must be residents of Northern California and are limited to no more than four entries per person. Entered works must have been done within the last two years, and cannot have been shown in competition. Dimensions of the works submitted must not exceed 20-by-24 inches, matted.

A $5 entry fee will be charged for each photograph entered, and all entries must be submitted to the museum by noon Friday, Jan. 11. Photographs will be insured by the museum.

Additional information is available by mail or through the museum office, or call 372-7591.

YWCA crisis line training planned

The YWCA Domestic Violence Crisis Line will offer volunteer training beginning Tuesday, Jan. 8, 1985. The Crisis Line is operated by volunteers who serve six- or 12-hour shifts weekly, answering calls from their own homes.

The training will take place at the YWCA, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays for four weeks. The topics covered are: history of family violence, psychology of domestic violence, legal remedies and crisis intervention techniques.

The 24-hour Crisis Line handles more than 1,000 domestic violence calls a year. The volunteers meet with the victims in hospitals and at police stations to offer help through the crisis period and if appropriate, to invite them to stay at the shelter.

Many volunteers find that the training provides them with interpersonal skills, friendship and fellowship with other volunteers, an opportunity to serve and assist others as well as career opportunities.

For more Crisis Line information, call the YWCA at 649-0834.

Victims of domestic violence receive help from local project

Residents of the Monterey Peninsula are invited to help provide holiday cheer for lonely senior citizens and for women and children who are victims of domestic violence.

A much-expanded Christmas Candy Cane Project to provide gifts for seniors and for the victims of domestic violence is being sponsored again this year in the Carmel area.

The project is sponsored by the Carmel Board of Realtors in cooperation with nine banks and savings and loan firms. The gifts will be distributed by the Carmel Foundation and by the YWCA Emergency Shelter for Battered Women and Children.

Institutions involved in the project are: County Bank and Trust, Carmel and Carmel Valley branches; Crocker National Bank, Carmel and Carmel Valley branches; First Interstate Bank, Carmel branch; Great Western Savings, Carmel and Carmel Valley branches; and Wells Fargo Bank, Carmel and Carmel Valley branches.

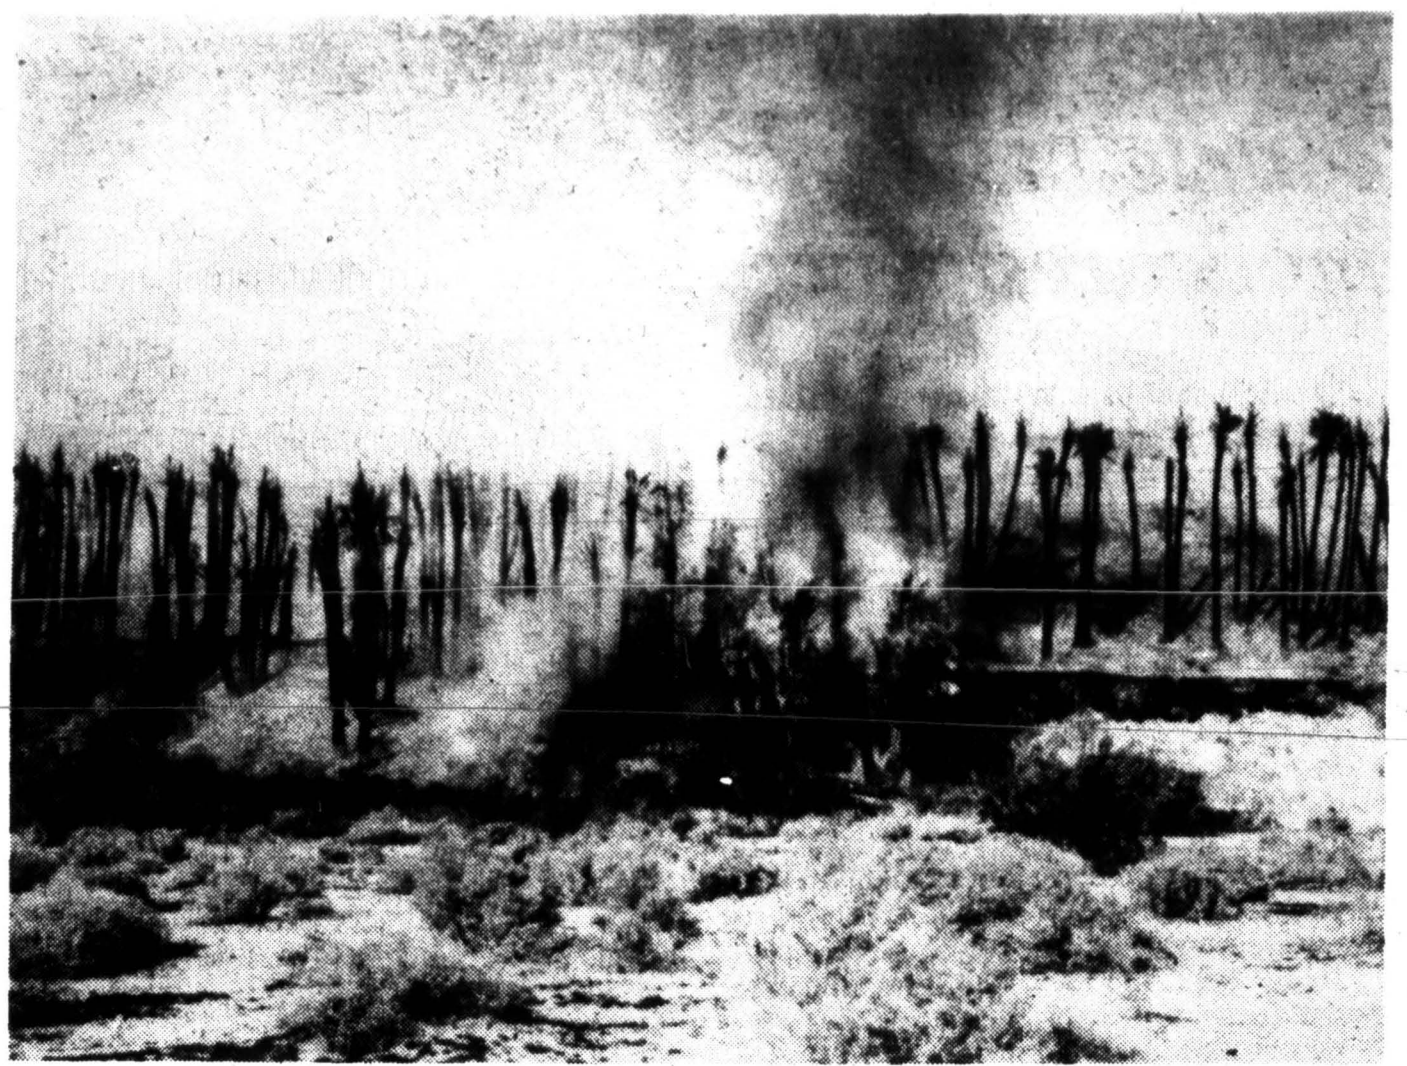

Here's how it works: decorated trees will be set up in each bank, along with small candy canes bearing tags. Each tag will suggest a modest gift to be purchased, wrapped, and left at the institution for pickup by Friday, Dec. 21.

In addition, baskets of candy canes will be placed in 21 real estate offices located in high-traffic areas of Carmel.

Gifts for seniors may include stationery, stamps, coffee mugs and household items, while gifts for battered women and children may include toilet articles and toys.

This is the third year for the project.

Courses to explore work of architect Stanton

Three courses offered during the Monterey Peninsula College Wintersession will explore the work of renowned local architect Robert Stanton as well as other noteworthy structures in the area beginning Jan. 2.

"Experiencing the Architecture of the Monterey Peninsula: Robert Stanton, Architect" will be presented 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, Jan.

14, 16 and 18, and finish with a field study tour on Saturday, Jan. 19. The classes meet in MPC Room A-9.

Beginning with a talk by guest lecturer Virginia Stanton, wife of the late architect, the class will cover the background and architectural work of the man, with full classes devoted to both the public buildings and homes he designed.

Among the buildings he is known for locally are the county courthouse in Salinas, Monterey Peninsula College, several elementary schools and Pacific Grove High School. He was responsible for restoration and remodeling of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel and St. John's Chapel in Monterey.

The homes among his credits include many in Pebble Beach, his own home in Carmel Valley, which was featured twice in House Beautiful magazine, and a number of celebrity homes in the Los Angeles area.

Students will have an opportunity to see his work first-hand in a tour of the Monterey Peninsula. Climaxing the tour will be a reception at the Stanton home.

In other Wintersession courses, Stanton's work will be joined by a cross-section of peninsula architecture, in both tours and class lectures. "Architecture of the Monterey Peninsula" meets for two weeks on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings starting Jan. 2 at 7 p.m. "Architectural Tour of the Monterey Peninsula" is a one-day class on Saturday, Jan. 12, touring noteworthy buildings on the peninsula from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Both classes meet in MPC Room A-9.

All of these classes are taught by MPC instructor Rick Janick and Monterey County historian Kent Seavey. To register for any of the classes, contact the MPC Admissions and Records Office at 646-4000.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the City Administrator for REMODELING OF CITY HALL, OCEAN & MONTE VERDE STREETS, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Bids will be received at the City Administrator's temporary office in Sunset Center, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California until 2 p.m. January 8, 1985, and then at said office opened and publicly read aloud.

Each bid shall be in accordance with the plans, specifications and other contract documents prepared by the architects, Fred Keeble & George Rhoda, AIA, 135 Webster Street, Monterey, California 93940. Bids shall be submitted on the form to be obtained from the office of the Architects.

The information for bidders, bid bond, agreement, plans and specifications may be examined and/or obtained at the office of Fred Keeble & George Rhoda, architects — 135 Webster Street, Monterey, California.

Copies of the documents are obtainable by general contractors at the office of the architects by depositing SEVENTY-FIVE DOLLARS ($75.00) for each set so obtained. Reference copies are available for the use of subcontractors and material suppliers at bona-fide builders exchanges. The deposit will be refunded when plans, specifications, and addenda, if any, are returned to the architect in good condition within seven (7) days after the bid opening date.

The owner reserves the right to waive any informalities, and/or to reject any or all bids.

Each bid must be accompanied by cash, certified check of the bidder, or a bid bond duly executed by the bidder as principal, from a surety company approved by the owner, in the amount of TEN PERCENT (10%) of the base bid, made payable to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract and furnish bonds as specified within ten (10) days after notice of award of the contract to the bidder, and will be retained as liquidated damages by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea if the successful bidder fails to execute the agreement as herein stated.

The successful bidder shall be required to furnish a payment bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, and a separate Faithful Performance bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements of Labor Code 1773.2 and 1775 as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the Contract.

Contractor shall pay not less than the prevailing rate of wages for each craft as determined by the local wage agreements between employers and unions. Deductions from wages are allowed for (1) Federal Old Age Retirement benefits, (2) State of California Unemployment Compensation, (3) Federal Withholding Tax, and/or as otherwise stipulated by Public Law.

ORDINANCE #84-1

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT ADOPTING PORTIONS OF THE UNIFORM FIRE CODE PRESCRIBING REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE INSTALLATION OF AUTOMATIC FIRE EXTINGUISHING SYSTEMS AND THE CONSTRUCTION OF RESIDENTIAL FIREPROOF ROOFS.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. AMENDMENTS MADE TO THE UNIFORM FIRE CODE.

The Uniform Fire Code dealing with automatic fire extinguishing systems is amended and changed to read as follows:

Section 10.309, paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), and (g) are amended as follows:

(a) WHERE REQUIRED. An automatic fire extinguishing system shall be installed in all buildings or structures, except agricultural buildings which shall be exempt, including residential structures of three (3) units or more, hereafter constructed or moved into the district, regardless of area separations or type of construction when such buildings or structures are:

1. Three (3) or more stories in height, including basements, garages, cellars, and mezzanines, or;
2. More than thirty (30) feet above grade at any point, or;
3. Five thousand (5,000) square feet or more of gross floor area. Contiguous buildings or structures such as shopping centers shall be considered as one building where internally linked by common walls. Buildings subsequently constructed contiguous to other buildings or structures using common walls shall be considered one building requiring compliance of both buildings when exceeding 4,999 square feet. Type V buildings or structures separated by less than ten (10) feet shall be considered as one building or structure, or;
4. Parking garages five thousand (5,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;
5. Bowling Alleys, or;
6. Drinking or dining establishments four thousand (4,000) square feet or more in floor area, or;
7. Providing an occupant load of fifty (50) or more above the first floor, or;
8. A Group A occupancy having a stage or enclosed platform or having more than one thousand five hundred (1,500) square feet in a basement.

(b) INSTALLATION, APPROVAL, AND MAINTENANCE shall be in compliance with the National Fire Protection Association Standards #13, 13A, 13D, and/or Uniform Building Code Standards 38-1 and 38-2 whichever may be applicable and the editions of which shall be determined by the Chief.

(c) Automatic fire extinguishing systems shall be installed and maintained at the owner's expense.

(d) Where access for fire apparatus and equipment is unduly difficult to any building or structure not otherwise required to be protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system, the installation of an automatic fire extinguishing system shall be required.

(e) Where an existing building or structure is not protected by an automatic fire extinguishing system, but would otherwise be required to be protected if built as a new building its use will be allowed to continue until such time any structural change takes place which modifies, alters, or affects, any bearing wall or similar structure assembly at which time it shall be made to conform to the provisions of this code.

(f) When serving more than 50 sprinklers, automatic sprinkler systems shall be supervised by an approved central, proprietary or remote station service or a local alarm which will give an audible signal at a constantly attended location.

(g) Subject to the approval of the building official with the concurrence of the chief of the fire department, sprinklers may be omitted in rooms or areas as follows:

1. Where sprinklers are considered undesirable because of the nature of the contents or in rooms or areas which are of noncombustible construction with wholly noncombustible contents and which are not exposed by other areas. Sprinklers shall not be omitted from any room merely because it is damp or of five-resistive construction.
2. Sprinklers shall not be installed where the application of water or flame and water to the contents may constitute a serious life or fire hazard, as in the manufacture or storage of quantities of aluminum powder, calcium carbide, calcium phosphide, metallic sodium and potassium, quicklime, magnesium powder, and sodium peroxide.
3. Safe deposit or other vaults of fire-resistive construction, when used for the storage of records, files and other documents, when stored in metal cabinets.
4. Other approved automatic fire-extinguishing systems may be installed to protect special hazards or occupancies in lieu of automatic sprinklers.

SECTION 2. AMENDMENT TO UNIFORM FIRE CODE.

Section 10.309.1 is added to the Uniform Fire Code dealing with fireproof roofs to read as follows:

"In high and extreme fire hazard areas, as defined by the California Department of Forestry, roof construction (except partial repairs) of fire retardant materials, such as tile, asphalt or asbestos combination, or equivalent, shall be required as per Section 3202(e) (excluding 11) of the Uniform Building Code, or as approved by the fire district. Until a site-specific map has been prepared, the extent and location of these areas for individual parcels shall be determined by a joint site inspection by planning staff and fire district. Vegetation removal will not be allowed as a means of removing high or extreme fire hazard designation from an entire parcel."

SECTION 3. UNIQUE CIRCUMSTANCES REQUIRING AMENDMENTS TO UNIFORM FIRE CODE.

The amendments in the Fire Code section set forth in Sections 1 and 2 of this Ordinance are necessary because of the following: unique geographic terrain within the district, inadequate access, excessive grade and turning radii on both publicly dedicated and private streets, climatic conditions (onshore winds which increase the danger of fire and coastal fog which limits visibility), the existence of a County Designated Major Highway with a high response call demand immediately adjacent to existing and proposed residential and commercial development, the utilization and maintenance of voluntary firefighting forces with longer alarm and response times, irregular and unpredictable manpower availability, the lack of sufficient fire flows throughout the district, the authorization and construction of both commercial and residential structures of increasingly greater size throughout the district so as to require a greater demand for fire prevention and suppression service within the district, requirements for development throughout the district consistent with County master planning documents.

SECTION 4. DATE OF EFFECT.

This ordinance shall take effect and be in force thirty (30) days from the date of its passage, and before the expiration of fifteen (15) days after its passage it shall be published once, with the names of the members of the Board of Directors voting for and against the same in the Monterey Peninsula Herald, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Monterey, State of California.

SECTION 5. FILING WITH THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT.

The Secretary to the Board of Directors is hereby ordered and directed to certify a copy of this ordinance upon its passage and cause the same to be filed with the State Department of Housing and Community Development in Sacramento, California.

PASSED, APPROVED, AND ADOPTED THIS 11 DAY OF DECEMBER, 1984, BY THE FOLLOWING VOTE: AYES: 3, NOES: 0, ABSENT: 0.

George "Bud" Hobbs
Chairman of the Board of Directors
Larry Busick, Secretary

RANCHO ROAD COMSTOCK

We have a small one of a kind "Comstock" situated on a nearly level, wooded acre lot that must be seen to be appreciated. The house is unpretentious, 3 BR, 2 BA, large living room with lovely view of the Santa Lucias, extra large kitchen and protected patio. It is well built and in excellent condition. This property would make an excellent retirement home for a couple or a remodeling "project" for the active buyer. The neighborhood is AAA. Please let us show it to you. Offered at $269,500.

COZY REDWOOD IN ROBLES

If you like natural wood and a woodsy setting, then come let us show you this home. In peak condition, this 3 BR, 2.5 Bath home sits on a beautifully landscaped lot in lower Robles Del Rio in Carmel Valley. With a huge adobe patio and redwood deck, it is ideal for outdoor living and entertaining. It is completely fenced and is ideally suited for the "YOUNG FAMILY." We are pleased to show it at anytime and the price is $189,500.

ARROYO SECO RANCH

502 acres of scenic land close to National Forest with the river and County roads running through the property. There are 2 homes and several out-buildings on the property. Over half of the land is open land and very useable. The balance goes from rolling to partly to rough bushy hills. Asking $750,000.

COUNTRY LIVING AT ITS BEST

10 acres. Brand new 2 bedroom, 1 bath home with custom cabinets, french doors and wood sash windows. Monterey Pine posts and beams. Pine floors, clear story windows, give this home a special feeling all its own. Assumable 1st of $110,000. Asking $165,000.

CARMEL SCENIC ROAD

Located virtually in the sand on the westside of Scenic, this 3 bedroom 2½ bath home has just completed a total remodel. Its Cape Cod exterior pulls you in as soon as you open the gate, and the high fence makes this courtyard entrance completely private. The main rooms and the master suite are on the entry level with 2 bedrooms & 1 bath on the lower level. The open floor plan and skylite make the kitchen, living & dining rooms bright & airy. There are new kitchen appliances and tiled counters. There are new carpets & hardwood floors. Just off the master suite is a ½ bath and study with its own private patio. The home has an extensive security & intercom system. There is also a 1 car garage. There is an assumable $467,000 loan at 11¼%. Call for an easy showing to serious buyers. $650,000.

MONTEREY DEL MONTE BEACH $125,000

Only a couple of hundred yards from the beach sits this 2 bedroom, 1 bath home. It has a new kitchen which you would expect to find only in a home of $250,000 or more. The bedrooms are large and there are open beams throughout. The living room has some ocean view and a heatilator fireplace.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE No. 84-2

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CARMEL VALLEY FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT, PROVIDING FOR THE DESIGNATION OF EMPLOYEES AND OFFICERS AUTHORIZED TO ISSUE ARREST CITATIONS.

The Board of Directors of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. ISSUANCE OF CITATIONS BY DESIGNATED OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES.

Officers and employees of the District who have the discretionary duty to enforce a statute or ordinance may, pursuant to Section 13872 of the Health and Safety Code and subject to the provisions hereof, arrest a person without a warrant whenever any such officer or employee has reasonable cause to believe that the person to be arrested has committed a misdemeanor in the officer's or employee's presence which he or she has the discretionary duty to enforce, and to issue a notice to appear and to release such person on his or her written promise to appear in court, pursuant to Section 853.5 of the Penal Code. No officer or employee shall be allowed by his or her superior to exercise the arrest and citation authority herein conferred, unless such officer or employee is within a classification of District officers and employees designated by resolution of the District Board to exercise such arrest and citation authority as to specified misdemeanor violations. The District Board shall establish and cause to be administered a special enforcement training program designed to instruct each officer or employee who will exercise such arrest and citation authority, regarding the provisions of the statutes and ordinances to be enforced, the evidentiary prerequisites to proper prosecution for violations thereof, the appropriate procedures for making arrests or otherwise prudently exercising such arrest and citation authority and the legal and practical ramifications and limitations attendant thereto. Any such officers or employees shall be appropriately instructed to deposit executed citations or notices within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District for filing with the court after review for legal sufficiency. Bail schedule for violations of the Uniform Fire Code will be set by resolution of the Board of Directors.

SECTION 2. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This ordinance shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after passage.

SECTION 3. PUBLICATION.

That the Secretary of the Board of Directors shall certify to the adoption of this ordinance and to cause some to be published.

PASSED AND ADOPTED AT A REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, County of Monterey, State of California, on this 11 day of December, 1984 by the following vote: AYES: 3, NOES: 0, ABSENT: 0.

About Bulls & Bears & Savings Bonds.

The stock market says that bulls are good and bears are bad. But if you buy U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan, you can get the most out of both markets.

Rates are high during bull markets, so the variable interest rate you get on Bonds lets you share in those higher returns.

But if the bear takes over and rates fall, don't panic; you're protected by a guaranteed minimum of 7.5%.

Just hold your Bonds 5 years or more, and you can ride the bull and beat the bear.

SANTA COULDN'T DO BETTER

THAN PICK one of these fine homesites on which to build your dream home in or close to Carmel!

SWEEPING VIEWS of the Valley hills, the Fish Ranch, and Point Lobos feature this gentle, sloping homesite on Lazarro Drive in Carmel's Hatton Fields. It's about the only open space of its kind in this highly desirable location. The lot size is 8500 square feet. Motivated owner has REDUCED the price to $160,000.

A SPECIAL PLACE to live...a find homesite at the end of Camino Real in Carmel, just where the bird sanctuary begins...so you can watch the birds, the clouds, the water, and the nearby hills forever. Not another like this one! Lot size is 108 ny 100. $250,000.

AT THE MOUTH of Carmel Valley, the last lot at the top end of Outlook with glorious views of the ocean and Point Lobos. Utilities at the street. $179,000.

NEAR CARMEL VALLEY VILLAGE...on Arboleda Lane on the north side, two lots way up high with lovely valley views looking south. One lot is $89,000, the other $105,000.

DISTANT OCEAN VIEW from this elevated and level homesites on Los Altos in the heart of an exclusive residential area in upper Pebble Beach. It's about one-third acre in size. $135,000.
